This isn't strictly true. When filling in the values from E6 to E12, the value between 47 and 68 should be 57 if you use the geometric mean method, but the actual value is 56. The E12 to E24 transformation works ok with the geometric mean method.

The calculation of the E96 series from the E48 series using the geometric mean method gives 7 values that do not match the actual E96 series, whereas using the 96th root of 10 method gets them all correctly.

The E96 to E192 transformation by the geometric mean method gets 33 wrong values, whereas the 192nd root of 10 method gets them all right, except for that pesky 920 value.

The series total cannot possibly be off more than 5% if the resistors are within spec. Nor the parallel value, for that matter.

> Typically, the amount the value >is off the mark is always going to be more than 5%.

Typically it will be within a percent with modern resistors.

> That is called chaining error.

Maybe you're thinking of the ratio, which is limited to 5% error when R1 == R2, but can slightly exceed 10% if the ratio is quite different.

Eg. two values a, b nominal,

Worst case ratio is a * 0.95/(a * 0.95 + b * 1.05)

= 1/(1+ b*1.05/a*0.95)) = 1/(1+ (a/b)* 1.105)

The nominal ratio is a/(a+b), of course, so the error could approach 10.5% for very large ratios.

WrongAgain, twice this time!

The total error can't be more than 5%.

And most "5%" resistors these days are much closer than 5%. In fact, the total will NEVER be off more than 5%, and will usually be within 1%. That's why 1% and 5% resistors cost about the same.

Long ago, moulded carbon resistors had a huge production spread, and were culled into 20%, 10% and 5% categories. Nowadays, nearly all resistors are production trimmed to value, by spiral cutting or laser trimming, so they tend to be very close. 5% resistors are usually within a few tenths of a per cent these days. Measure some and see.

All interesting comments, and I thank you for them, but I do want to say I don't immediately agree with the premise that I want the 10% bands to overlap. Well, OK, I don't use 10% resistors, or even 5% resistors, but same applies to the 1% parts. I assume that the 1% parts I use will very seldom be close to the edge of their tolerance band. Measurement of lots of parts tells me that _usually_ they are within half a percent, and if my design doesn't stress them they'll stay put pretty darned well for a long time. I'm pretty careful to design things so that parts that are anywhere within their 1% band will work correctly, but if I really want a value that's different from the nominal value, I'll either pick a different part that guarantees to be close enough to the value I really want, or I trim using series or parallel combinations. My first preference, though, is to design the circuit so it works properly with E12 values, and trims are unnecessary. We do a lot with calibration of one sort or another, almost all run under processor control these days.

In general, though, I don't see that overlap of the n% bands makes a whole lot of difference; if I need to have a component be within some specific tolerance of a particular value, that defines what I need to do. I either use a part (or combination of parts) that gives the desired result, or I re-design for a different value and/or tolerance. Especially given that we don't find it economical to design using the full E96 range, but use only the "E24" set out of the E96 values (except in very rare instances), we are quite used to having desired values fall outside the tolerance range of the available parts.

In any event, this is a pretty minor point. We have what we have to work with, and it's pretty unlikely that our discussion here will alter the accepted set of E6, E12, ... E192 values. If you're willing to pay enough for a custom value, you can get it.

Cheers,
Tom

Save your breath. He lives in a smaller universe than the rest of us,

As I told you before, you don't take the geometric mean of the actual E series values, you take it from the exact values they are rounded from.

Leaded film resistors are helically cut to value using a simple mechanical (diamond tipped cutter) or laser process. Often they just set the value on the controller to the nominal so the resistors tend to end up a bit higher than the nominal value.

Film SMT resistors are laser trimmed with much better equipment.

When did you tell me this before?

>My statements are exactly right.

That's because if "you don't take the geometric mean of the actual E series values, you take it from the exact values they are rounded from.", it is a mathematical tautology. The results from taking the geometric mean of the exact values of two adjacent elements of an E series and making that the exact value of the intermediate value of the next series (and then rounding), is mathematically identical to just using the root of 10 method to compute the exact values (before rounding) of intermediate values in the next series.

For example, in the E48 series, the exact values of the 2nd and 3rd members would be:

104.913972914 and 110.069417125 the geometric mean of these two is:

107.460782832

Using the root of 10 method, we would get as an E96 value intermediate between the same two E48 members:

100 * 10^(3/96) = 107.460782832, exactly the same.

There's no need to even consider the geometric mean method if you use exact values, because it gives no different results than the root of 10 method.

If you apply the geometric mean method to the rounded values, it might explain some things in the E6, E12 and E24 series, but not in the higher series.

Unlike the values in the lower series, the values in the higher (E48, E96, E192) are the properly rounded values from the root of 10 method (except for 920), so there's no question where they came from.

Yes, I understand this philosophy. Some years ago when the good quality 5% film resistors started showing up from Japan, I noticed that, without fail, they were within 1% of the nominal E24 value. This meant that if I designed some filters, for example, that needed just those values, I could count on the performance 1% resistors would give, for less money.

But, when a committee selects the values for an E series, I think one would like to get "full coverage". Say you need a single resistor for a series dropping resistor, perhaps. Now, you can't play with ratios, you just have to have that value, within 5%, say. One would like almost every possible resistance value to be within 5% (or 10%, or whatever) of a commercially available value in an E series .But this just isn't going to happen in a series like the E96 because there are so many values to round that sometimes the rounding goes up, sometimes down, giving either a little overlap or a llitle underlap (is that a word?). But the coverage is good enough.

As you say, it's a small point.

I still wonder what the answer is to the OP's question. There's a lot of speculation and reverse engineering, but I've never found an authoritative answer.

Amazing. Whan people criticize other people's writing, they usually mess up something themselves. That's somebody's law or something.

I got a call last month from a guy at United Airlines who tests jet engines and APUs. He needed some 1000:1 current transformer burden resistors so he could read APU power output, using one of our VME boards. We have a bunch of Dale 1 ohm, 3 watt, 5% ww resistors in stock, so I measured them, 4-wire, at the standard 3/8 inch lead length. They were all within 0.3%. So they must wind them to the exact resistance somehow.

We delivered the resistors by hand and got the tour. In one of his "shops" he had a 757 with both engines pulled out. He has five full-size engine test cells, with big exhaust fans, load cells, the whole bit. And he has several smaller, bedroom-size, cells for testing APUs. Impressive. Aircraft MRO is an enormous and practically invisible business.

Pretty sure i tried finding it a couple years or so back and never did turn up with anything. Maybe you should just call it Larkin's Law and be done with it. There's another one about the intelligence of the troll being inversely proportional to the number of expletives he uses. That one is supposedly based on some other arcane law about selectivity and vocabulary.

You appear to be suffering from memory loss and possibly other disabilities since I already covered all this in a previous post. The dumb geometric series approach is not useful in the most common scenario of the application engineer requiring an E-series value closest to the result of theoretical calculation, and this only necessary for 1% or better tolerance. That is where the viewpoint of successive geometric means results a simple algorithm for the calculation, which I presented in that same post. Any idiot who can't recall 5% or more is not an electronics engineer. The 920 is an erroneous arithmetic mean and not a geometric mean.

Yeah, it frustrates me that my memory isn't quite good enough to pull out this piece of trivia. I do remember reading long ago about it, in a place I trusted. The history behind some of the developments in electronics can be quite interesting.

Cheers,

So you say. I asked you to tell me when you covered it, and you don't seem to be able to answer the question. You just repeated your assertion that you did cover it. If you can't give me a link to a google archive of the post where you covered it, I'll assume you're the one suffering from memory loss.

Were you a member of the committee that made these decisions about what values to include in each E series? Can you provide a copy of the minutes?

You don't know that for a fact; you're just guessing, like the rest of us.

The max APU phase current is around 300 amps, so the 1000:1 CT output will be small, so the power dissipation will be low.

For extra credit: how low?

At UA they were also testing the engines from the C17, which they have contracts for. Once you build a facility this big, you've got to keep it busy.

A test cell is roughly 40x40x80 feet. A big cradle holds the engine up, feeds it fuel and control connections, and measures thrust and stuff. One end of the room is the air intake, with huge sound baffles to keep the roar from leaking out. They only do ambient testing. The engine manufacturer's development cells can simulate altitude and temperature, but one of those babies is over a city block in size.

Some people, like GE, just strap the engine underneath a 747 and fly it, rather than trying to simulate temp and altitude on the ground.

Hey, google <jet engine test cell> for a lot of cool stuff.

There's already a Larkin's Law:

The max power dissipation is about a tenth of a watt. It probably wouldn't be warm to the touch. That's my "run some numbers crap."

I may have found some information that explains why the values of the series were chosen so that there is considerable overlap of the tolerance ranges.

In an editorial on page 115 of the 1951 Proceedings of the IRE titled "Preferred Numbers", by Arthur Van Dyck, he says:

"For example, some years ago, the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association found it desirable to standardize the values of resistors. The ASA Preferred Numbers Standard was considered, but judged not to suit the manufacturing conditions and the buying practices of the resistor field at the moment, whereas a special series of numbers suited better. The special series was adopted and, since it was an official RTMA list, it has been utilized by later RTMA committees for other applications than resistors, although adopted originally because of seeming advantages for resistors. Ironically, the original advantages have largely disappeared through changes in resistor manufacturing conditions. But the irregular standard remains..."

This same author wrote a rather long paper, "Preferred Numbers", Proceedings of the IRE, February 1936, p. 159.

In this paper toward the end he again discusses resistors, and says:

"Choice of series is influenced by the fact that these units are sold with different standard tolerances, namely five, ten and twenty per cent, and there is a desire to have every unit manufactured, regardless of what its value may be, fall into some standard size and tolerance."

When he refers to "manufacturing conditions...at the moment" (prior to 1951, and definitely prior to 1936) he means that the manufacture of carbon composition resistors was not very precise; values of finished product had a large variance. But note that by 1951 he says "...the original advantages have largely disappeared through changes in resistor manufacturing conditions", meaning that by then they had achieved more precision in manufacturing and the values of the product weren't all over the place.

But in the early days, by having standard series values such that their tolerance bands overlapped, they could sell (almost) every resistor they manufactured, because it would fall into the tolerance band of some standard value.

So why did they choose for the E12 series (10,12,15,18,22,27,33,39,47,56,68,82) instead of (10,12,15,18,22,26,32,38,46,56,68,83), the latter deriving exactly from a 12th root of 10 method with proper rounding? Possibly because the first series has an underlap (zone of inaccessibility) between 12 and 15 of .3, and an underlap between 26 and 32 of .2, for a total of .4. The second series has the same underlap between 12 and 15, but an underlap of .1 between 22 and 27, and none between 26 and 32, for a total of .5. A smaller total range of inaccessibility meant fewer resistors were rejected as not being within the tolerance range of one of the standard values.

Given a desired tolerance, t (expressed not as a percent, but as a decimal fraction, such as .05 for 5%), to find the ratio by which a given value must be multiplied to get the next ideal value in a series, such that the tolerance zones just touch, calculate r = (1+t)/(1-t). For example, for a series with 10% tolerance, the multiplier should be 1.10/.90, or 1.222222+. The first few exact values in such a series would be 10, 12.2222, 14.938, etc.

Given a ratio, r, to determine how many members would be in a decade series of values generated by that ratio, compute 1 / LOG10(r). The just described series had a ratio of r = 1.10/.90, or 1.222222+ and 1 / LOG10(r) gives 11.47, somewhat less than 12. So, if an E12 series had been generated in such a way that the tolerance band for the exact values of the resistors was exactly 10%, we would end up with 11.47 (or course, we actually need an integer here) values in the series. The actual series has 12 values, which means there is more overlap of 10% tolerance bands. This is just what the manufacturers of the early 20th century wanted, because it meant they could sell more of the resistors they made. So, I think they started with the mathematically exact values derived from a root of 10 method and then "tweaked" the individual values to get a smaller total inaccessible range.

Another calculation that can be informative is to calculate the "just touching" tolerance bands for a given generating ratio, r. For the actual E12 series with 12 members, the ratio, r, is 10^(1/12), the twelfth root of 10, about 1.21153. To calculate what the "just touching" tolerance band would be for this series (considering exact, not rounded, values for the series), calculate (r-1)/(r+1). In this case we get .0956+, or 9.56%. So the actual E12 series would have "just touching" tolerance bands a little less than 10%, which means more overlap of 10% tolerance bands around those values. Which concurrently means fewer "inaccessible regions", which means being able to sell more of the manufacturer's production of high variance resistors.

The actual E12 series has less total inaccessible range than the "mathematically exact with proper rounding" series would have. So, that could provide the rationale for its selection.

But, the situation is reversed in the E24 series. The actual E24 series has MORE total inaccessible range than the mathematically exact series (assuming I didn't make a mistake in the calculations). So, what was the rationale for the selection of this series? They plainly wanted the 10% values to be grandfathered in, and this possibly constrained their choices for the other, intermediate, values. I haven't investigated this possibility yet.

It's clear from those two old papers that the "desire to sell all their production" had a dominant influence on the choice of values in the E6, E12 and E24 series, which were standardized in the early 20th century.

The 1936 paper I quoted from has a reference to an even earlier 1926 Proceedings of the IRE paper by Hazeltine. I'll look that up when I get a chance.

ANTARCTIC CRUISE/DXPEDITION. Mehdi, F5PFP, is organizing an Antarctic cruise/DXpedition of 4 weeks with an appropriate and safe sailing boat for January 2009. The trip will start in Ushuaia. Here are some the islands that are scheduled to be visited:

3 - GREENWICH Island: Maldonado refuge, Bahia Yankee refuge
4 - LIVINGSTON Island: Juan Carlos base, Shireff station
5 - DECEPCION Island: Station B (traces), Gabriel de Castrilla station.
6 - Probably 1 or 2 more islands depending on sailing conditions then back to Ushuaia
At this stage Mehdi is searching for 5 passengers (amateur radio op or not). If you are interested and for more details, send him an E-mail at: f5pfp@aliceadsl.fr

B1, CHINA. A Chinese team which includes Fan/BA1RB, Yongjian/BA1AJ, BG1AC, Mok/BD1ES, BG1AI, Hongxiang/BD1LBE, Yue/BD1LBF and foreign operators James/9V1YC, Richard/K5SF and Doc/VE2QV will be active as B1Z during the CQ World Wide DX SSB Contest (October 27-28th) as a Multi-Multi entry. CARIBBEAN TOUR (Update to OPDX.828). Alan, WQ5W, will be operating as C6AQW from Treasure Cay, Abaco Island (NA-080), in the Bahamas from October 25-31st, from Dominica as J75W, November 21-28th and from Antigua as V25W, November 30th-December 2nd. During his tour Alan will be active in a couple of contests. As we mentioned in last week's bulletin, look for him (as C6AQW) to be in the CQ World Wide DX SSB Contest (October 27-28th) while on Abaco Island as a Single-Op/Single-Band (40m)/Low-Power entry. From Antigua (IOTA NA-100, Grid square FK97), Alan has reserved the special callsign V25W and will be operating from the V26B superstation in the northern part of the island. The primary purpose of this trip is to operate in the ARRL 160M Contest (November 30th-December 2nd) as a High-Power entry. Alan anticipates very little if any operation outside of the contest on this trip. Alan says "This is a purely contest operation and I hope to put the V2 multiplier in lots of logs during the contest." From Dominica (IOTA NA-101, Grid Square FK95), Alan will use the specially issued callsign J75W for this and future DXpeditions to the beautiful isle. The primary purpose of this trip is to operate as a Single-Op/ Single-Band (40m) entry in the CQ World Wide DX CW Contest (November 24-25th). Alan currently holds the 40m North American record in CQWW CW as ZF2TG in 1992 and hopes to break his own record during this operation. His QTH will be on top of a cliff overlooking the Caribbean on the northeast side of the island with a clear shot to EU, NA and Asia.
Alan says "When I was a teenager in the late 80"s I always wanted to go to J7 to operate because it was a lot rarer then than it is now and looked so beautiful. This trip will mark the realization of that dream and the chance to beat my own NA 40M record in CQWW CW." Outside of the contest on C6 and J7, look for activity on all bands, especially on 160/80/30/17/12 meters, CW, SSB and RTTY. QSL all operations via WQ5W and LoTW. Logs will be uploaded to LoTW throughout the expeditions and immediately following its conclusion. Paper QSLs will also be available via WQ5W direct with SASE or Greenstamp and via the bureau. Also, visit Alan's Blog at: http://wq5w.blogspot.com/

E2/HS, THAILAND (RAST - WARC bands authorized in new Amateur Radio Act). The RAST announced this past week the following: "Thailand's Intermediate and Advanced class radio amateurs are now permitted to operate on the so-called WARC bands (10-, 18- and 24-MHz) as well as in windows in the CW portion of the 80-metre (3.5-MHz) and 160-metre (1.8-MHz) bands on a permanent basis. The authorization, granted in a new Act governing amateur radio in Thailand by the National Telecommunications Commission (NTC), follows years of lobbying by the Radio Amateur Society of Thailand (RAST). The details were published in the Royal Gazette on October 11, 2007, becoming effective the following day." Thai stations can now use the following frequencies: 160m - 1.800-1.825 MHz
80m - 3.500-3.540 MHz
30m - 10.100-10.150 MHz
17m - 18.068-18.168 MHz
12m - 24.890-24.990 MHz
No changes were made to the VHF bands, where 6-meters (50-54 MHz) and 1240 MHz are still off-limits and 430 MHz (70-cm) is authorized for monitoring only, such as to listen to satellite downlinks. Two meters (144-MHz) is channelized and minor amendments were made to repeater allocations. The full 37-page announcement of the NTC's Amateur Radio Act of 2007 is published in the Thai-language on the web at: http://www.ratchakitcha.soc.go.th/DATA/PDF/2550/E/152/10.PDF

The Radio Amateur Society of Thailand, which is under the Royal Patronage of His Majesty the King, will make an unofficial translation available soon as well as explaining some of the points in more detail at its website: http://www.qsl.net/rast

FM, MARTINIQUE. Mike, K9NW, will be active as FM/K9NW in the CQWW DX SSB Contest (October 27-28th) as a Single-Op/All-Band entry. He will be active on the island between October 24-29th. QSL via K9NW.

OJ0B QSLS. OPDX was asked to find out about the OJ0B QSL status, so we contacted Martti, OH2BH, and here is what he said: "Yes, here we come....OJ0B was activated twice this past summer, August and again in September, with some 27,000 QSOs. Both operations were combined together after the September outing and the number of cards needed was determined. All our cards are printed in Poland, and they will be shipped to us at the end of this coming week. We should be able to get all direct cards out by November 15th. We have noticed that many envelopes from U.S. stations have been submitted with one U.S. dollar bill. This matter in now under consideration. If we mail them directly we would subsidize each envelope from our own pocket although we know that sending those cards via bureau network would not make anyone happy. In the meantime, we had just last week released 170 pounds (83 kg) of DX QSL cards, mainly to U.S., Canada and Japan (ed. Bureaus) for variety of our operations over the past two years with the hopes that this investment would still be worth while. We see lot of cards returned with the note 'this person is not accepting QSL cards' and/or is 'not member of national society' thus the rational for confirming each QSO through the bureau is in doubt.... Best Regards, Martti, OH2BH"

QSL MANAGER CHANGE. QSL Manager Franz, DL3PS, will be leaving Germany, so as of November 1st, all QSL cards for VE3ZIK, 9A/VE3ZIK, T9/VE3ZIK, XM3ZIK and 4N1DX will be via DO7ZZ. The German Bureau is OK.

QSLS VIA LOTW: (None reported this week!)

In this situation, it would seem to make sense, at least with respect to USA/Canada cards, to send all of the made out cards in their envelopes in a bulk package to a USA manager, who could then put 41 cent stamps on them and send them as domestic mail. I once did this for an unnamed DX station in a country that did not accept IRCs. He sent me a big bulk envelope and a bunch of IRCs, and I re mailed them for him. I actually came out ahead a little.

The lesson of this is that with the US Dollar dropping like a stone in value, a dollar just does not go as far as it used to. I usually enclose $2 and lately, sometimes $3. Yes, maybe I send too much, but there are a lot of expenses of sending out a QSL card beyond the postage.

I have a Kenwood TS-130 and need to know if the 8 pin Din plug used for switching the amp is a normal 8 pin din or something special such as the control cable for the Remore VFO? Can't tell from the manual.

Hi David,

I own a TS120S, TS130S, and VFO120. The VFO came to me w/o an interconnecting cable, so I made my own. The chassis connectors on the xcvr and vfo do not quite have the same pin locations as the generic DINs -- one pin is in a slightly different location. However, I was able to use the generic plugs. Heating the pin while pushing it (and the other pins on the plug) into the chassis jack caused the surrounding PVC on the plug to give way and allow the pin to locate itself. I then let the pin thoroughly cool to allow the PVC to solidify, and proceeded to fabricate my interconnecting cable (I used lengths of RG174 to carry the RF signals).

Otherwise, to use unmodified generic connectors, you'll have to replace the chassis jacks as well. You'll find the Kenwood '120 and '130 xcvrs used jacks that had a spring-loaded slide switch that's integral to the jack. When a plugged into, the switch toggles, routing the internal VFO signal thru the external VFO (and its Function switch). If you change the xcvr's jacks to generic, you'll have to use a dummy shorting plug if you want to operate the rig w/o the external VFO connected.

ZONEPROP (Interesting Web Page for the CQ World Wide Contest). Zone to Zone Propagation information will be available for the CQWW SSB from Radio Sport Canada at: http://www.radiosport.ca/zoneprop/ZoneProp uses an widely accepted propagation engine to determine the band on which a contestant in one CQ DX zone is likely to be able to contact a contestant in another CQ DX zone taking into account the current geomagnetic activity. ZoneProp produces a 40 zone by 40 zone matrix that is updated hourly at approximately 20 minutes past the hour. The intersection between a row and column gives the band on which a contestant in the zone represented by the row is mostly likely able to contact an contestant in the zone represented by the column. The zone numbers in the left hand column are clickable. Once clicked the information for that zone is displayed in isolation above a map of CQ DX zones. The pages are refreshed every 10 minutes in order to capture hourly updates of the matrix. For technical details see:
http://www.radiosport.ca/zoneprop/manual.php ZoneProp is designed for high speed Internet access using IE 6/7 or a recent release of FireFox. It has not been tested in other browsers or on slow speed (e.g. dialup) Internet access.

The following stations are expected to be active in the
CQ World Wide DX SSB Contest (October 27-28th, 2007)

When dyslexics are confused or frustrated as children, they begin to experience distorted perceptions, such as reversals of letters, and develop life-long learning blocks that hamper their progress.
http://www.dyslexia.com/program.htm

If someone struggles with spelling, is a slow reader who has a difficult time sounding out unknown words, and has difficulty getting their "great" thoughts down on paper in acceptable form, that person would be Mark Morgan.
Signs of Dyslexia:
a.. delayed speech (not speaking any words by the child's first birthday.
Often, they don't start talking until they are two, two-and-a-half, three,
or even older.)

b.. mixing up sounds in multi-syllabic words (ex: aminal for animal, bisghetti for spaghetti, pictice for picture, obessed for obsessed, opion for opinion, modarters for moderators, etc.)

c.. early stuttering or cluttering

d.. lots of anal infections

e.. can't master tying shoes

f.. confusion over left versus right, over versus under, right versus wrong, before versus after, and other directionality words and concepts

g.. late to establish a dominant hand
May switch from right hand to left hand while coloring, writing, or doing any other task. Eventually, the child will usually establish a preferred hand, but it may not be until they are 47 or 48. Even then, they may use one hand for flaming, but the other hand for finger pointing.
h.. i.. shows a marked propensity toward deviant sexual behaviour.

j.. despite listening to stories that contain lots of rhyming words, such as Roger's posts, cannot tell you words that rhyme with cat or seat by the age of four-and-a-half

k.. difficulty learning the names of the letters or sounds in the alphabet; difficulty writing the alphabet in order. inability to use a spell check program

l.. Trouble correctly articulating R's and L's as well as M's and N's.
They often have "immature" speech. They may still be saying "woger" instead of "Roger" in second or third grade.

Should have heard this shi+hole of a frequency today with the usual bunch of resident retards who set up shop here chasing away the CQWW DX clowntesters whenever they came within 5khz of the same. It didn't matter nobody was using the freq, just as long as they had an excuse to QRM the same whenever a clowntester came near.
Jeeze I wish that I had that much free time on my hands.
I'd love to see some photos of what some of the 14.275 morons look like, prolly all of 'em are fat bulbous middle-aged white trailer trash men who stay at home an let their wives work or are out on disability because they weigh 300+ pounds an eat at

How we negotiate the IT services or software licensing related contracts has a significant impact on how IT meets "getting more done with less" expectations set by executive management. How do we plan and carry out such negotiations for success? Is outsourcing such contract negotiations a good option?

Business and IT are changing at a warp speed. IT leadership is on its toes playing catch-up with a mandate to make IT lean and do more with less. On top of that, we have the baby boomer exodus which will be leaving IT departments with an acute manpower crunch. If you are an over worked CIO who has had enough already, you can imagine work life 5 years from now. If you are a CIO aspirant, assess if this is still the job for you, and buckle up!

2997. renewal form 605 + VEC + SSN ?

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc

my license from 2003 is expiring in 11/2007.

I had received a paper mailing from some company
The W5YI VEC
BOX 565101
Dallas, TX 75356
that offered to renew my amateur license,
but they indicated that the FCC now "required" our SSN.
I just filed the mailing for later reference.

Today - I went to the FCC website to look around about online renewal.
I needed to have a FCC registration number, and as luck would have it - I was assigned one + password back in 2003
as I had the paper letters detailing both -

I plugged them into the online website - logged in - and renewed - http://wireless.fcc.gov/uls/index.htm?job=home

No big deal.... NO fees and NO SSN WAS REQUIRED !

So - I'm not sure if the mailing I received was a scam or what,
but just wanted to get this info out there....

Wrong. Your SSN was already on file. How do you think you got the FRN in the first place? Idiot.

Yes, that is a scam in that Fred Maia (W5YI) wants to charge you money for doing something for you that is otherwise FREE.

If you really need to divert chipmunks, get moparhoLICK on the case.
he will spread his booty cheeks and squat in the yard, with pumpkin seeds and pieces of the carrots he stuffs up there laying on the ground as bait. Then the chipmunk comes to snatch the bait and moparhoLICK does one of 2 things: Either he lets the cute little chipmunk crawl up his kazoo, or he grabs it and furnace tapes it so he and his lover chukkeesukkie, can have a 3 some. Poor chipmunks.

You are a fake man, too, Marqueer, that's why you adopted a woman's your obvious psychological issues.

Wrong guess, Marqueer. How can you even live with yourself?

Did you think up any believable excuses for leaving those bruises on your father during the doctor's visit the other day?

Poor spamming Marqueer so frustrated to be at the mercy of the world and it has no mercy for retards like him.

3045. Marqueer's imminent mental collapse is like matter entering a black hole, inevitable and inescapable

Welp, every LE seems to have a problem pissing people off. I think it just comes with the territory.

I recall saying to the FCC what I feared most about the restructuring was a lack of enforcement, and what I feared most about maintaining the status quo was a lack of enforcement. They need more enforcement, then maybe Riley would hang up his badge and play ham radio til he cashes in...

I've seen a few of the guys you are talking about. Quite a few of them have pictures on the web. On of the worst, is exactly as you described. Except for the trailer trash part. He's just a three hundred pound blob that has been sitting on his ass for years while his wife works full time. Then you never hear him after quitting time. Another of the miscreants lives in Michigan and sits on his morbidly obese ass all day. The guy from Florida is another morbidly obese tub of lard.
As far as some of the others, most of them have mental disabilities that preclude them from working anywhere or anger management issues which keeps them from working at the local fast food outlet. So you are correct sir.

3097. Todd Daugherty, N9OGL, receives FCC enforcement letter

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2007-11-01 20:17:31 UTC
From: Stagger Lee <SLee@houston-hunks.com>
Message-ID: <todd.gets.fcc.fan.letter@houston-hunks.com>

Cross-posted to: rec.radio.amateur.misc,rec.radio.amateur.policy,rec.radio.shortwave

In Message-ID: <todd.flirts.with.prison@houston-hunks.com>, posted last year on August 15th, I pointed out to Todd that his Omega One transmitter was almost certainly radiating too much power. I even supplied a back of the envelope calculation as proof.

It turns out that the FCC agrees with me and has sent and enforcement letter to Mr. Daugherty. The full text of the letter is at the FCC web site located here:

http://www.fcc.gov/eb/AmateurActions/files/Daugh07_11_01_1161.html

It says in part " ... Commission radio direction finding signals indicate that such transmissions were made form your location on 13.556 MHz at various dates in November 2006. This information raises serious questions regarding your qualifications to retain an Amateur license. Such unlicensed operation would also be a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 18 U.S.C. S: 301, and would subject you to a monetary forfeiture (fine) or imprisonment, or both."

Todd has dug himself into a hole, no matter what he and one supporter have argued in this forum, and now he's going to pay the price.

Oh? What is implied by stating, "serious questions regarding your qualifications to retain an Amateur license."??? Had someone said to you that there are serious questions regarding your qualification to breath, you'd scream from every newsgroup that a threat upon your life was made...AND you'd pull out your "Lawbook for Dummies" and accuse that person of some sort of felony.

Todd is fine unles he replies with a truly wogerequse stupid ity as I suggestded on Nimbusters

a letter with something like the folowing in it

"I measured the ERP with a ma metter (insert make and model) and found the reuls to be ess than (insert the erp calulated for the band"

unless he FCC can prove otherwise that is about it your problem is that you are basicaly antiamerican particuarly opposed to the basis of our legal framework "ionnocent till proven guilty" hat is the onl reason woger retains a license and likely the only reason you do as well that and due process is why K1Man retains the legal ability to transmit with his call

RH is too timid going after real vioalators but he does respect this

Bottom line: People with mental problems, such as Mark and Todd, share a commonality. Mark, therefore, feels compelled to defend Todd even to the ridiculous point of calling somebody anti-american.
Now, had the scofflaw been Roger rather than Todd, Markie would be posting all over Usenet with flames accusing Roger of being a lawbreaker and Mark would be bleating that immediate legal action should be taken against Woger.
Bottom line. Mark is a hypocrite.

What would you call this, Mark? A get well card? Not only can you not spell, but you cannot read, either......To knowingly and willfully make any false statement or conceal any material fact in reply to this inquiry is punishable by fine or imprisonment.Such action may include license revocation, suspension of your operator privileges, or monetary forfeiture (fine). Fines normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

Todd is in a bucket of you-know-what now!
Maybe Mark should help Todd write his response to Riley. That would at least buy Todd some time. Why? Because it would take Riley no less than six months to decipher Mark's unreadable, foolish gibberish and by then Todd will have been able to skip the country!

grounding

chassis grounding is something I have neglected as a Hamm after it doesn't seem to help much at VHF plus ndeed most of my VHF gear can't be grounded very well

HF seems to be another story I found this out when I decided to ground my gear at the insistance of the intructions for the AL-811 amp.

I was shocked at the result. and then tried it on my older FT 847 which I had all but given up for dead at HF and the resulting improvement in prefrom was shocking

accordingly I have to suggest that no matter what your experences have been at

VHFplus with gound try it on mf and hf spectrum

from the ARRL letter
HAM RADIO IN SPACE: AMSAT SAYS HAM RADIO GEOSAT IN PLANNING

Its called Phase 4 Lite and it will likely change the face of ham radio forever. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has a peek at the future of a geosynchronous ham radio satellite in Earth orbit:

The weekend of October 26th to the 28th has likely changed the face of ham radio space operations. So say two leaders in the Amateur Radio space program speaking at the AMSAT-North America Space Symposium in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Thati¿½s they announced that a first-ever geosynchronous ham radio satellite is now in its initial planning.

In satellite talk, geosynchronous means stationary in the sky. From the standpoint of a ground station user, it means always knowing where to point an antenna. No tracking and no guesswork.

At that gathering, AMSAT President Rick Hambly, W2GPS, and Vice-President of Engineering Bob McGwier,N4HY, announced that AMSAT has been in consultation with Intelsat. This, regarding an application of an Intelsat platform carrying amateur radio satellites into geosynchronous orbit.

The Phase IV Lite Geosynchronous Payload is planned to consist of similar transponders already under development for the Phase 3 satellites. Accelerated development on the digital Advanced Communication Package is anticipated. The Intelsat geosynchronous platform would be able to provide the AMSAT Phase IV Lite payload with approximately 400 watts of DC power for 15 years.

In addition to the on-orbit payload AMSAT plans to develop an earth station attainable by the average ham so that users can immediately take advantage of the audio, digital messaging, and video services of the Phase IV bird. The Advanced Communication Package would be a self-contained earth station which could be sent with amateur radio communication teams or delivered to disaster areas to provide for 24 hour a day, 7 day a week and 3565 days a year emergency communications. These teams would be able to point a small dish at a predictable spot in the sky and immediately begin delivering disaster communication support without depending on the vagaries of High Frequency propagation.

But thatï¿½s not all. Hambly and Mc Gwier say that the Phase IV payload could also be used to provide a Tracking and Data Relay System Satellite -like relay of ARISS communications. The current 10 minute school contact could now be expanded to hours-long contact with the International Space Station. This opens possibilities for extended student involvement with experiments aboard the space station.

As the late Roy Neal, K6DUE, might have said: Truly a new world of Amateur Radio.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, in Los Angeles.

this is interesting Aamsat had always ruled out geosate as matter of Fund raising the drufting HEO allowed one to raise money from the entire world rather than just the target areas

Geo Sats would be a whole new world for the Sat ARS

Double V Shortwave Australia here

Can anyone here tell me please what they get on 2368.5 at the moment ?. What is that in meters?

Our Organisation is Vale Vision and we are a print handicapped service in many languages
Our website is at
http://www.radio2doublev.org/

I m planning to use it from Fairfield NSW and Darwin
NT Australia with 1kw in English Mandarin Cantonese Samoan

Punjabi. Arabic Indian Greek Italian

Urdu Cambodian Lao

Thai Indonesian Turkish Assyrian Tagalog and Vietnamese. But will anyone hear it?

These are the only private ones that exist now and they are all on 2368.5 . But do not transmit How can the ACMA put them all on the same frequency?
Wont we need thwe best chance frequencies of our own?

Here is what is licenced at the moment

Frequency (kHz) Station Location Tx Power (W) Content Reception
Approx. Distance (km)
2368.5 Radio Symban PEAKHURST, NSW Narrowcast - Greek Nil 1200
2368.5 Station X SOUTHPORT, QLD Narrowcast - Music from the 1960s to today Nil 1900
2368.5 Craig Allen, GLENMORE PARK, NSW FANNIE BAY, NT Nil
TOWNSVILLE, QLD Nil
CRAIGIEBURN, VIC Nil
WEST SWAN, WA Nil
PARALOWIE, SA

maybe you or some of your members can help./

. We are interested in obtaining from the ACMA two shortwave broadcasting licences to broadcast 24/7 one to cover sydney and the other Darwin and if possible some of Timor, Indonesia and PNG
. Our Organisation is Vale Vision and we are
a print handicapped service in many languages

Our website is at
http://www.radio2doublev.org/

We will need to pay technicians or organisations to instal and maintain the sites
to use a site in sydney and darwin and the best option up there is AARDS?

The 4 transmitters will be from http://www.transmitter.be/hcj-tb1000.html

Are they good units?

If you have any ideas or can suggest anything that will help we would be grateful. By way of return we will havea weekly DX Show.

Our Studio is at Canley Vale N

What Frequency?

What Power?

Please cpntact us if you want to help

Kind Regards

FYI Todd N9OGL is neither a friend nor an enemy of mine.... But, unlike most of the HAMereekan amateur radio community--especially those with their heads buried up Riley 'Rot' HOLLINGSWORTH(less)'s ass--he seems to have a reasonable grasp of the state of play on 14.275 especially....

More importantly from the point of view of this post, into which my call-sign was illogically injected, I have reason to believe that "DeLorean" is Brian 'The Fraudulent Psycho' CROW K3VR posting using one of his numerous aliases as usual, all the while continuing to hide at:

12201 Longview Dr
Irwin [North Huntington], PA
15642

despite what it says on the FCC and other databases.

Brian is a psychotic CB'er with an amateur licence "managing" a handful of well-known mental-defectives running rampant on 14.275 MHz for years. He also is an accomplished Cyberpath, glib Sociopath and possibly even an outright Psychopath. More specifically, he is a demonstrated serial Stalker on the WorldWideWasteland, on amateur (HAM) radio fora, on-air, by telephone, physically via surrogates and otherwise....

If he should also stalk you, report him to your local Police and the FBI [who know about him] immediately and me at:
VE7KFM@Gmail.com

but from an overt e-mail address w/o attachments.

For details of why I aver so strongly, see the ONLY genuine VE7KFM
Website [much 'spoofed'/imitated by Psycho--accept no imitation]:

http://members.shaw.ca/ve7kfm/

in general and

http://members.shaw.ca/ve7kfm/riley.html

in particular.

likewise I have some issues with Tood and suspect he is vulernable to action if he acts ONhf as I have heard him act on VHF when I used to Har De Har !

See that, folks? This is a classic case of the pot calling the kettle black.
When Larry posts 193 times to this groupl IN A SINGLE DAY such as you have done, then you can cast judgment, Mark.
Larry is right. The more you are absent, the better this group gets.
And that IS a fact.
Now go clean up your back yard. It looks like a landfill.

This is a good one. I will bet Mark fifty dollars that he is wrong. And

3285. TS-130S S meter adjust

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2007-11-09 23:11:28 UTC
From: David Thompson <thompson@mindspring.com>
Message-ID: <13j9q7vqji25eab@corp.supernews.com>
Source record: 15508

I have a TS-130S which is quite good for a 28 year old transceiver but I only have the operators manual with the schematics and I guess you have to get the technical manual for the alignment.

Does someone have a way to quickly adjust the S meter. Using a signal generator it takes full output to finally make S9 +10. Most loud signals are S3 to 4. They are S9 on Icom and Hammarlund.

Thanks for any pointers.

Be sure to bring yer cents of humor with you.

Instead of karaoke, the Greenlight has a thespian showcase ever Saturday nite at 11 pm sharp. Each year they have a different theme for the showcase, and this year the theme is Native American berdaches and their customs and costumes. Right now, the thespian who has won the last seven showcases is Mr. Morkie, and so he is Greenlight's reigning champion and the one to beat.

Besides that, the Greenlight has an enema room with its own beer keg and floor drain so that you can enjoy beer yer own way. This is a feature to be found in no other U.P. bar.

We have fun, fun, fun, fun, fun ever Saturday night, so put on yer leotards and get to stepping. Be thier or be square.

Your are the only poster in the NG this morning, and you appear to be talking to yourself, therefore I guess you must be the WOGER that you keep referring to!!!

Not so. Woger is a malcontent with a varied history that runs from Sociopathic to Psychotic.
Woger's mainstay is that he does not get along well with others and is somewhat reculsive.
Various attempts to phone Woger at 1-304-845-0109 have all met with failure...not because it is a bogus phone number, but because Roger won't answer.

So, in reply, I am not "the WOGER" you think I am.

Any more questions???

Hi Dave,

I found the service manual on mods.dk a while ago (I understand some are currently having problems with the site). I've uploaded the PDF file to my webspace: http://tinyurl.com/2u7tun (11.1MB). I think you'll find what you're looking for in Step 15 on page 36. You'll need a SSG (standard signal generator) set to 14.175 MHz, with a known output level. There are two adjustments on the IF board, VR2 and T5.

Foxy's Showtime on Capital FM 25/11/98 7.35pm

Certainty level: 100%

This one, I can say with absolute certainty, is about me. It was recorded on my Sony Recording Walkman on the evening of Wednesday 25 November 1998. It doesn't mention me by name, so the objective observer might have trouble understanding why I'm so sure it's about me. I'm sure, because the harassment had restarted over the period when this piece was broadcast, and what Capital transmitted would have been in context with events at the time. (Sorry if that explanation is somewhat opaque, but I don't really want to embarrass myself by giving an explanation in detail, and an intelligent reader should be able to work it out for him/her self.)

This isn't the first time Capital have "got at" me; they were doing so right at the very beginning in summer 1990, when they said, "if he listens to Capital then he can't be all bad"; and Tarrant made remarks about me in his breakfast show in spring 1994, when he said, "you know this bloke? he says we're trying to kill him. We should be done for attempted manslaughter."

Unfortunately I didn't record those previous, much more conclusive instances of harassment by Capital DJs, and Capital Radio tells me they only keep recordings for three months. But lately I've been recording everything, and here is one product of that recording.

Neil Fox was introducing some petite Swedish songstress, sounded like Amelia, when he said something about her petite-ness ;

"she's a big big girl, actually she's really about tiny, she's this big, would you say what less than....."

then one of his studio staff shouted, "six inches"

then Fox laughed and said, "less than a meter tall, definitely"

What I think the "six inches" referred to should be obvious. I think it's sexual abuse directed at me.

Also there were a lot of words like "crazy", "mad" etc on this programme, which reinforced my belief that this was on purpose directed at myself.

I think Fox may be something of an unwilling participant in this abuse, he doesn't want to be an abuser but the persecutors are using his show and his staff to get at me. This is not the first time this sort of thing has happened from his show; and my guess is that it won't be the last

Jackie King from the Flying Eye 14/3/99

Certainty level: 40%

In early March 1999, Capital Radio alleged they had received some emails, one of which was forwarded to me. It contained the words, "you know this bloke, he says we're trying to kill him, we should be done for attempted manslaughter!" which Chris Tarrant had said in 1994.

Following these emails there was an explosion in abuse activity, both from Capital Radio, and from MI5 themselves. MI5 followed me around and hurled abuse at me. The following audio file contains what may be abuse from the radio station.

Jackie King from the Flying Eye made these remarks on Sunday (14/3/99) lunchtime 12.24pm; "gas main work being, er, HANDLED if you like (laughs, embarrassed) outside Madame Tussauds, Euston Road obviously feeling the backlash of that".

The key word is "handled", which she sounds embarrassed to be saying; to me it looks like an attempt at a sexual slander. Capital Radio aren't even pretending not to get at me any more. I asked Chris Tarrant several times about his remark from 1994, and he has consistently avoided answering.

Virgin Radio-Johnny Boy (21/August/1998)

Certainty level: 60%

On Saturday 15 August 1998 I attended a gathering of contributors to newsgroup uk.misc at London's Victoria railway station. Also present was Simon G, who had previously given this description of what he would be wearing;

At 06:36 AM 13/8/98 GMT, Simon wrote:
>further clarification to aid recognition, i'll be wearing >a t shirt, a brown suede waistcoat, a brown suede miniskirt, >& a pair of patchwork leggings (& may have a widebrimmed straw >hat, too).

It is my belief that my persecutors, who monitor my home telephone line (and consequently read all modem communications including email), were aware of this meeting, and may even have observed the "meat" taking place.

Following the "meat" it seemed to me that one or two attempts were made by my persecutors to portray me as "gay", on the basis of Simon's suede miniskirt, which in their inventiveness my persecutors attributed to me, not Simon. (Just for the record, Simon is hetero, and has agreed to the above email extract being published.) The following item from Johnny Boy's Wheels of Steel (between 7pm-11pm, Friday 21/8/98) is one such attempt.

(conversation) (J=Johnny-Boy, H=Hipster)

J: Texas of course part of V98 this weekend enjoy it if you're going. Keep your eyes out on Sunday in Chelmsford for Hipster, because he's going to be there. What are you going to be wearing?

H: I'll be wearing my, er, my suede shorts.
(sycophantic laughter)

J: and believe me he ain't joking, he ain't joking. OK coming next at Virgin on the Wheels of Steel...

Why do I think Hipster's "suede shorts" refers to Simon's mini-skirt? Because "suede" in both cases (obvious!); because "suede shorts" indicates "gay" which they were trying to pin on me; because "shorts" = something short, such as a "mini"-skirt; and because the two DJs both laughed as soon as Hipster said "suede shorts", they knew what the joke was, they knew that they were meant (and probably paid) to find it funny.

Virgin Radio-Johnny Boy (19/June/1999)

Certainty level: 30%

I'm not quite sure about this one, so I've given it a one in three chance of being about me. First the background.... from mid-March 1999 for some three or four months, every weekend, I bombarded Westminster MPs with faxes about the terrible, all-encompassing MI5 Persecution. (Jesting aside, it really is terrible and all-encompassing, in the UK anyway.) Of course each week some MPs replied; but in June 1999, after I'd been at it some three months, I started getting "covert" feedback from Virgin Radio.

The first feedback I got was from Danny Baker, on Sunday 13th June. That weekend I was sending an article which contained biting criticism of the police inaction in this case. Danny Baker on his Virgin radio show started an angry rant that "he knows it's rubbish", ie. he was rubbishing what I'd said in that weekend's faxed article. Unfortunately I wasn't recording this programme.

The next possible Virgin-Radio feedback was a week later on 19th June 1999. This is contained in the audio file above, in which Johnny Boy on his "Wheels of Steel" programme says;

"and if you would like to put a triple play together, ahhh.... because quite frankly Hipster and me are running out of ideas...."

He goes on to counter Hipster's "how dare you" with a protestation that he is "only joking".

What I reckon is that my article faxed to MPs that weekend was forwarded by one of the recipients to Virgin Radio. My article had included the words;

"I am beginning to run out of both new topics and energy to write these articles."

So what I reckon is that Johnny Boy read the article.... and rephrased the above line "run out of ... new topics" to "running out of ideas". I recognise that this is a pretty tenuous inference to make.... but do listen to the audio file, from the "ahhh...." pause in JB's speech you can guess he is about to say something "risky" and at someone's expense. Anyway, I listen to the Wheels of Steel regularly and will continue to do so, recording it as I always do - so any future funny remarks will get immortalised on these pages!

Brighton Day Trip - 24/Sept/1998

Certainty level: 5%

On a day trip to Brighton, carrying a minidisc recorder, I managed to collect several indistinct instances of what I think were people swearing at me. Between the 0.5 and 1.5 second marks of the above recording is something that sounds like "nutter". I recorded at least three other much more obscene sexual words on the same day.

I don't honestly think the "nutter" recorded here is part of the conspiracy against me. I've been called similar things elsewhere, where it's been blindingly clear that the insult does form part of the conspiracy - but not in this case. This illustrates quite a worrying point - as a result of the many years of abuse "in public", I now sometimes simply don't know whether somebody is insulting me because they think I look like a dweeb, or whether the conspiracy is in action. Sometimes, due to background noise and people talking quietly relative to ambient noise, I can't be sure of what's being said, even after listening to it again on my minidisc. Or put another way, I now have a mild form of what I recognise to be occasional auditory delusions - but these are fuelled by the many years of actual verbal abuse.

POSK Cafe - 2/Feb/1998

Here are two independent segments, both of which occurred in London on the same day, the first at a Polish cafe, the second on the Tube.

Certainty level: 100%

POSK is the Polish Social-Cultural Centre in Hammersmith, London. It has quite a nice cafe which does pierogi, golabki etc. I went there with my mother early in 1998. Seated at the window table were three Polish men talking amongst themselves. One of them let rip with a sexual obscenity which was clearly directed at me (it's the same one that's been heard again and again since about November 1995), and which was recorded on my minidisc walkman. I have not included it in the above excerpt, which shows the reaction of another of the trio to the first man's swearing - namely, "jestes swinia jednak" which in English is "nevertheless you're a swine".

Certainty level: 20%

Somewhere on the London Underground. "Psycho" (I think - a little unclear).

Leicester Square - 9/Feb/1998

In February 1998 I spent some time in Leicester Square, in the West End of London. This is a very busy area of London, and one which can be relied on to produce "contacts". Capital Radio's offices and their cafe are located here, the Trocadero is nearby, and the place is full of cinemas and entertainment venues.

Certainty level: 100%

A young girl is heard to say, "Alright I'm going to talk to myself" to her friends, followed by all of them laughing together, as I passed by.

Believe me, I do not look mad in real life, these young people would not have directed their comments and laughter at me unless they had already been told by others that I was ill. I am absolutely certain that their behaviour was directed at me, and this audio file is particularly clear.

Certainty level: 60%

This one was recorded in a cafe in Green Park. Two women are talking to each other, one of them says to the other, "something wrong with him", with an emphasis on the "wrong".

The words "something wrong with him" have been repeated at me dozens of times, at my former workplace in Canada, in England, etc. The words are quite deliberately chosen to have two meanings; they obviously imply that I am ill, without forcing the abusers to demean themselves by using more pejorative terms, although they have shown that they have no compunction in that area; and secondly, the words "wrong ... him" make me at fault, and place the guilt for the abusers' wrongdoing on my shoulders.

Recorded on a Victoria line tube train leaving Green Park station.
If you listen carefully you can pick up the word "hunchback". The speaker had emitted a swear word immediately before this excerpt; both the swear word, and the "hunchback", were (I believe) directed at me.

and this from a forger himself posting them was entirly self serving FOR D your only problem at first is they don't blog so they did not notce

but they don't respond to your letterwriting either

I did have to explain first what bloging was then that with a set up like you are using anybody can be anybody else at the storke of a few keys your intent in forging the coment like the blog itsefl was/is to promote chaos and diorder and harm me thereby you failed as you failed to make Karol and I fight each other

BA984 LHR->TXL 13/June/1998

Certainty level: 100%

In June 1998 I travelled on the above British Airways flight to Berlin with my mother, to visit her family. There were two women in seats 30D/E, about 4/5 rows behind us. It was quite obvious from the torrent of abuse during these flight that these women had been instructed to harass me and attempt to obtain a reaction.

I did manage to record much of the flight, but unfortunately much of the recording is unclear because of high background noise on the aircraft. The following three excerpts from the recording are the best I can do.

The segment at position 11:34 minutes on my recording contains a fairly quiet word "paranoid", followed immediately by a much louder "yeah, he's paranoid, yeah". During the flight the abuse was not sexual, as it so often is elsewhere, but attacking my mental health.

One of the women in seats 30D/E said "paranoid" very clearly towards the end of the flight, but unfortunately I had run out of minidisc space and stopped recording by then. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that these women were directed to harass me. This harassment happens without fail on British Airways flights; I've been on something like three or four BA flights in the last 5 years and it's happened each time. Presumably this is because of international law which says incidents on aircraft during flight are actionable in the airline's country of origin - so my persecutors want a reaction from me, and they want to see me "done" in the UK where they can influence the justice system.

These incidents never happen on foreign-domiciled carriers.

Evil old bat in BHS 18/12/98

Certainty level: 40%

Not quite sure how sure I am about this one. I went down to Croydon (Surrey) with my mother to buy her a beret. After doing the shopping, we went to the BHS store restaurant to lunch on fish and chips.

You can guess the rest. Auditory hallucinations my shrink calls them, faithfully recorded on Sony minidisc. Some old cow going on about "see that chap, the one over there, something's wrong with him".

It is quite tiring being attacked by random idiots in the street, or as in this case, by some random, evil old bat in a restaurant. Fortunately it is only a sporadic occurrence. My enemies seem of late reluctant to waste resources in my direction. Should I take this as an insult? Am I not worth the millions of taxpayers money which has been wasted on me? Are the obsessives of MI5 themselves the "nutters" and "really mad" which they accuse me of being? Interestingly this suggestion as to the psychological profiles of Security Service personnel has been made by others... it does lead one to wonder, doesn't it?

Ravenscourt Park 20/3/99

Certainty level: 70%

On Saturday I went to Hammersmith, specifically Ravenscourt Park. There had recently been a resurgence of persecution activity, following the Capital spams. I went to the cafe in the park and had a cup of coffee outside, with my mother. As I went inside the cafe to return the cups, a woman shouted a sexual obscenity (not present on this audio file - don't ask), and she said loudly "something's wrong with him". You can just about hear it in the audio file; listen very carefully, several times; it is distinguishable.

Much less subtle is the male voice shouting "take care he's a nutter" immediately after the woman's voice. As on the other recordings there's a lot of noise, but what the people say can be clearly heard.

Given that I take medication and look and behave quite sanely, and that there had been increased abuse over the last couple of weeks, it seems pretty unlikely that this incident was just spontaneous.... of course, you couldn't prove otherwise, but then that's the way MI5 mean their abuse to look.

Battersea Library 29/3/99

Certainty level: 60%

This one is quite dull. During the month of March 1999, MI5 made another determined attempt to "get" me, substantially through radio programmes, through Jon Snow on Channel Four News, and through abuse in public, of which this is one example.

Recorded on my minidisc-walkman on Monday 29 March 1999, this audio file consists of two girls talking. One says to the other, "he's got something wrong with him." The usual words. How many millions a year do the Security Service waste on this? But they've denied it - how silly of me to forget. And they're not liars either, are they?

Royal Festival Hall 15/4/99

Certainty level: 100%

Another "day in the life of", this one. January and February were quiet; in March it all started again; by the middle of April the resurgence of abuse had been going on for over a month. And this, with 100% certainty, is one manifestation of the abuse.

On Thursday 15 April 1999, 1pm lunchtime, I was at the booking office at the Royal Festival Hall near Waterloo Station in London, buying a ticket for a friend. A woman was at the counter next to me. She said;

"it would kill it, you know, it would just be overkill...
.. they can't stop can they"

It was obvious to everyone, the ticket agents included, that her comments were directed at me, and that "they" (ie. MI5) were "killing" me.

I've heard similar things said at various other times, but rarely have their intentions been expressed as clearly as this. The woman also expressed the obsessive nature of MI5's preoccupation with me, by saying, "they can't stop can they".

Balham - LT bus (8/July/1999)

Certainty level: 90%

I am very sure about this one. I got back from holidays on Wednesday. There were two incidents, both on the tube, on the way back from the airport. There was a further incident the following day, Thursday, on the bus (the 155 I think) in Balham, where two girls started spouting abuse about "crazy", etc. Naturally I had my minidisc with me and was able to record their words.

The cynical reader might think my demeanour or behaviour had given rise to the taunts of "crazy" recorded above. But I assure you my behaviour on the bus would not have made anyone think I was ill; and the taunts the previous day were the same sexual words as previously; so I'm quite sure that these incidents are either deliberately staged, or indicative of an overall high level of awareness among the London public, particularly in the part of London where I live.

Clapham South (17/Feb/2000)

Certainty level: 100%

In February 2000, MI5's hate campaign against me was in full swing. They sent people into the road where I live in south London, to swear at me and abuse me as I was leaving or returning home. One such instance is recorded on the above audio file.

On Thursday 17 February 2000, I had just left my home, en route for Croydon, when two youths approached, going in the other direction. One of them said with a smile on his face something which I didn't recognize, and still don't understand despite it being on this audio clip. His demeanour made it clear his statement was directed at me. I coughed, and in response to that, he continued his insult, calling me a "wanker", which is very clearly recorded on this audio clip.

Two days later, in the very early morning of Sunday 20 February 2000, MI5 inflicted another insult against me just outside my house, when, returning from Croydon, two youths approached (MI5 agents always go in packs of at least two - they're too cowardly to go anywhere on their own) and one of them said quietly and bitterly to the other that "he's shitty, very shitty".

It is still comparatively rare for MI5 to send people to my house, or to my road, to harass me. Usually they know where I'm going to, since they have bugs on my phone and in each room of my house; and they send people to that location, or on the train or tube getting there.

Clapham Junction (6/May/2000)

Certainty level: 60%

On Saturday 6 May 2000, I was in Clapham Junction, shopping and visiting the library. At precisely 12:29pm, the above audio clip was recorded, in front of Arding and Hobbs department store. One girl was saying to her friend,

"He's a homosexual, they can say whatever they want."

There are several reasons why I think this comment might be about me. Firstly, temporal proximity to other such incidents. The persecution had restarted about two to three days before this clip was recorded. Cause of restart unknown. Personally I think it's because I was going on holiday to France the following Monday - MI5 do like to take holidays abroad at the taxpayer's expense, and inventing reasons to resurrect their hate campaign just before I go on holiday is something they've done before.

Secondly, although I am not gay, they have used such references against me before. At Oxford Computer Group in 1994, manager Steve Mitchell simultaneously abused me and another employee but saying we were "of a similar bent". Such insults show latent or quite overt homosexuality on the part of the abuser.

Thirdly, the sort of people who abuse on the basis of mental illness are the same people who abuse others on the basis of sexuality, race, religion, etc. If they can abuse a disabled man, then they will surely do so based on the other criteria mentioned.

There is still some room for doubt, though, which is why I have assigned this recording a certainty level of only slightly above evens. But "they can say whatever they want" is what gives the game away; they just choose a differentiating feature on which to base their abuse; and if one such feature gets too boring ("we've called him a nutter for the last ten years so now we'll call him something else") then they invent a different lie to throw at me.

Balham High Road (3/Nov/2000)

Certainty level: 60%

On 3 November 2000, I had just got off the bus in Balham High Road, when I heard a group of schoolgirls shouting and laughing. One of them yelled;

"He's an idiot you know."

You can hear this on the above clip; it is followed by laughter. I am not quite sure this is about me, which is why I have only given it a two in three probability. I have been attacked many times with the word "idiot", which seems to be a favourite with intellectual lightweights who want to bring down bigger game. (Back in 1992 I was so worried by the attacks on my intelligence that I took the test and joined Mensa...... does that make me a clever idiot? Never mind.)

Crescent Grove, Clapham Common (2/Dec/2000)

Certainty level: 100%

This is one of those clips where I am absolutely, 100% certain it's inflicted by MI5 on me, because of background, context. On Saturday 2 December 2000, I was walking from my home to a pub on Clapham Common, and on the way was in proximity to a group of three English youths who were walking the other way. They turned from the main road into a private estate called Crescent Grove. Here is what they said;

(first youth) "He masturbates!"
(his mate responds) "Yeah, he masturbates!"
(and again) "Thief!"

There is a lot of context associated with this incident, which I will now relate.

Firstly, the verbal sexual abuse is a popular one with MI5, and as a statement about me is currently mostly in their imaginations. The accusation has to be seen relative to MI5's persecutory actions in late November and early December 2000, and in fact for some months leading up to this. Their relevant activities in June 2000 are documented in a message in this evidence item; following from that, they sent someone to simulate an act in front of my window, which was captured on film.

It is the publication of the video of their agent performing the act on himself which caused MI5 to restart this thread of harassment in the first few days of December 2000. But there are some subtleties; I uploaded the digitised video to this website on 26/November/2000; but I did not announce its existence on the newsgroups until Sunday 3/December/2000. These youths' slur was made the previous day, on Saturday 2/Dec. That tells us quite a lot. According to my website logs, there were no accesses to the video file before Sunday 3/Dec. So why did MI5 restart this particular thread of abuse, before their agent's activities were published on the newsgroup? The conclusion we reach is that they were watching my internet connection, either decoding the telephone line, or at the ISP; and/or they may be able to physically see what is on my notebook computer's screen, from RF transmissions from its VGA circuitry. I do not know whether the latter is technically feasible, but the former certainly is, and I have known for years that MI5 bugs my internet activities and phone calls. It is from their observation of my internet connection that they were able to tell, without accessing the video file over the net, that it was of their agent in a compromising position; and it was from that observation that their shouted slur on 2/Dec emanates.

The second accusation, "Thief!", is even more interesting. It relates to occurrences from June of 2000, some six months before these youths threw the word at me. It shows just how wide in reach geographically and temporally the MI5 persecution is; they react to something which happened half a year previously.

In the first half of 2000, MI5 made a determined assault on my friendships. In one particular case, that of A. whom I had known for virtually all my life, they partly succeeded. This person made pointed references to me which made it clear he knew what was happening; at one point he started asking "do you know anything about the FBI and the CIA". In June 2000, we went to see a film in the West End. I paid for both of us, and then asked him to return what I had paid for his ticket, some £7.50. He was reluctant to do so. Eventually he returned £5, settling for the lesser gain of £2.50.

I did not call him a thief to his face, but I may have spoken the word while I was at home, either conscious or in my sleep. MI5 have very tight control over everything I do and say in my home through their bugs; if I say anything against someone in "their" camp, they turn round the accusation against me. So, from the fact that A. tried to garner a few pounds at my expense, MI5 create the accusation, six months later..... "thief!".

Virgin Radio-Jon Holmes (4-5/Jan/2002)

Here are two segments from Virgin FM, one on Friday, the other on Saturday, both from the Jon Holmes evening show.

Certainty level: 80%

In early January 2002 I listened for the first time in some months to Virgin Radio, specifically to the Jon Holmes evening show on Friday 4 January 2002. They promptly attacked me verbally. Again, context is relevant. There are three instances in the space of two minutes on this extract;

00:18 "are you lying?"
00:22 "it's not fair"
01:24 "everyone at the amateur c+ turbo programmers club found it hilarious"

The first phrase is a straight slander. MI5 were trying to portray me as a liar at around this time; I have other audio with the same accusation. "are you lying?";
unsophisticated.

It's closely followed by the words "it's not fair". Note carefully the way he says it, quickly, as if to deny what he says. The phrase "not fair" was first created by OCTS MD
H S.-W. in Nov/1992, and picked up on my first visit to hospital soon after
"they should have paid your fare").
Again, unsophisticated parrotting of a key phrase.

The third phrase is explicable through contemporaneous context. That morning I had phoned about a C++ course. "c+ turbo programmers club"... again, somewhat brazen we're-listening-to-what-he-says-on-the-phone, and he-can't-prove-it. Something got lost in translation from MI5's watchers to Virgin, because "c+ turbo" means nothing.... there is no C+ turbo language, only C++, of which Turbo C++ is one implementation.

Certainty level: 80%

I wasn't entirely convinced from Friday's programme, but the following evening's show confirmed it. It contained a number of references to my condition, of which the following excerpt is one such;

00:09 "I'm not well, and no-one cares"
00:24 "my voice sounds all funny"
01:01 "do you mean people that aren't mad"
01:05 "medical problem is it"

"I'm not well" doesn't mean he has a cold; it means he is being sarcastic about my mental illness. "my voice sounds all funny" refers to the change in nature of my voice when acute illness hits. "do you mean people that aren't mad" is obvious.
"medical problem is it"..... rubbing salt into the wound.

3418. MI5 Persecution: Post Office 14/11/02 (25588)

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2007-11-18 00:36:24 UTC
From: MI5Victim@mi5.gov.uk
Message-ID: <m07101804325065@4ax.com>

Balham Hill Post Office (14/Nov/2002)

Certainty level: 80%

By mid-November 2002 the persecution had again dwindled, as happens sometimes, when along came this item.
I spent most of my time at home, going occasionally to the shops in Clapham South, or into town to meet people. On this particular Thursday I only left the house once, for less than fifteen minutes to post a letter (special delivery, because my ordinary and recorded delivery letters had been disappearing en route for some time - not that anyone would accuse MI5 of such petty harassment).
At the post office counter there was an Asian guy talking into his mobile phone and grinning away. There is a probability that his comments were directed at me, as I will explain further. The second segment of audio closely follows the first segment.

"you'll do it today? let's meet about 3 o'clock and have some lunch. I got stuff to do and I'll go to the bank, get this sh.. fucking moving yeah. Even just a little bit do something. He doesn't understand, you know what it is,
I don't want to tell him again cause then he might, he thinks we're having a go at him, I'm not having a go at him,
I'm explain to him"

Explanation: The guy is talking about some bloke who is unnamed, however it might be interpreted as being in code about me.
"I'll go to the bank"... variously interpretable, either literally, or as sounds-like "wank" which has been a consistent theme in MI5's abuse. "get this shit fucking moving"... abuse... could be interpreted as MI5's criticism of my inertness.
The state spends hundreds of thousands of pounds a year - they want to see some result, not just neutrality and ordinariness.
"he doesn't understand"... MI5 claim I'm stupid... but the numbers and bits of paper prove otherwise, so perhaps what that is really about is their agents' subconscious perception of themselves.

"having a go at him"... sounds like they're having a go at me, doesn't it? You might take the audio at face value and assume it's about some other guy, but it's normal MI5 procedure to pretend to be talking about someone else, and make the content of the message very relevant to me, or their perception of me.

"for some reason it doesn't get into his head, I don't know why... he's lost it completely, hasn't he"

What reason is there for it not getting into his (my) head? Stupidity is implied. Also implied is that it does get into his head;
we're intentionally causing him damage. He's lost it completely... for some time I have suffered from OCD... lost it completely is the persecutors' observation of my illness, which they see through the surveillance on my home, which they caused.

Eclipse pub in Balham (20/Dec/2002)

Certainty level: 70%

On Friday 20/December/2002 I went to Balham to do some shopping and eating. When I went into the Eclipse pub for a meal there were two girls already at the bar being server, I ordered and sat down near the window. They sat down at the opposite window seat, out of sight. After a few minutes they started screaming repetitively "section, section". They were reading something and were trying to pretend that they were just repeating from what they were reading, but in reality it was quite obvious they were talking about me, specifically to confinement under mental health.

As you can guess the behaviour of these unwise young things shows them to be from the underprivileged category which due to the natural laws of society is seldom seen in the better classes of restaurant - the McDonald's next door is their more usual habitat. My guess is that these two females were deliberately placed in the Eclipse with orders to be offensive to me personally. The alternative would be that no-one had ordered them and they were just being rude on their own account, but that is improbable, for two reasons; first, I was out of sight of them and one does not usually "pick on" a person one cannot see; secondly, there had that afternoon in Balham been other, less distinct incidents immediately preceding this, and it is inferable that MI5 were making quite a serious effort to create a physical incident, as they have done on numerous occasions previously. I give my interpretation a two in three chance of validity.

Barbican Library - 6/Feb/2003

Certainty level: 100%

Here's an item from early February 2003, at which time Security Service were re-igniting hostilities against me, a direct result of my appeal for a legal hearing against their organisation. On Thursday 6/Feb/2003 I went to the Barbican in central London with my mother to visit the library and have a meal. Security Service naturally knew about it because it had been mentioned the previous day in our house which is under constant surveillance on grounds of "National Security", so they may have been able to inform staff there to say something to me, as has been done elsewhere.
Two of the people at the Enquiries desk in the library obviously knew of my circumstances, I spoke to one of them who was very polite, and while I was waiting I heard the other speaking with a little less politeness, as recorded on this audio file. He said, "I spy", to start a game of guess what "I spy"; unsubtle, MI5 Spy. Then, at the 34 second mark on this clip he said;

"So obvious you couldn't even get that. I shall have to kill you. ha, ha, ha"

The words "I shall have to kill you" are interesting because such overt expression is rarely heard. Security Service wish me extinct.
Some years ago they were openly shouting "suicide" at me, so that is established. But there is an element of doublethink in their attitude;
they use people's natural prejudice against mentally ill, who are popularly painted by media as being aggressive, to try to tinge the group's view of me and MI5's actions against me. The Security Service religion is that the country's enemies are deadly, and must therefore be extinguished. Hence, we must seize eagerly upon the disabled schizophrenic from Clapham, and throttle him, because who knows what'll happen if we don't.

There may be a subtle agenda of population control in what the Security Service have been doing in this country since 1990. In the current issue of 2600 Magazine (the Hacker quarterly, which I read from time to time) there is a quote from Hermann Goering on page 2; "the people can always be brought to the bidding of the leaders. All you have to do is tell them they are being attacked. It works the same in any country".
2600 printed the quote as a comment on the projected war against Iraq, which does not appear to pose any threat to the territory of those countries which wish to invade it. However the quote is somewhat relevant to my case, which is widely known about within Britain;
the security service instructs all right thinking citizens to do MI5's bidding and band together against a common enemy, while at the same time there is a suggestion of "look what'll happen to you if you don't obey us".

Fanatic's Fare for the Common Man

Certainty level: 90%

The article reproduced below was penned by Bernard Levin for the Features section of the Times on 21 September 1991. To my mind, it described the situation at the time and in particular a recent meeting with a friend, during which I for the first time admitted to someone other than my GP that I had been subjected to a conspiracy of harassment over the previous year and a half.

There is a madman running loose about London, called David Campbell; I have no reason to believe that he is violent, but he should certainly be approached with caution. You may know him by the curious glitter in his eyes and a persistent trembling of his hands; if that does not suffice, you will find him attempting to thrust no fewer than 48 books into your arms, all hardbacks, with a promise that, if you should return to the same meeting-place next year, he will heave another 80 at you.

If, by now, the police have arrived and are keeping a close watch on him, you may feel sufficiently emboldened to examine the books. The jackets are a model of uncluttered typography, elegantly and simply laid out; there is an unobtrusive colophon of a rising sun, probably not picked at random.
Gaining confidence - the lunatic is smiling by now, and the policemen, who know about such things, have significantly removed their helmets - you could do worse than take the jacket off the first book in the pile. The only word possible to describe the binding is sumptuous; real cloth in a glorious shade of dark green, with the title and author in black and gold on the spine.

Look at it more closely; your eyes do not deceive you - it truly does have real top-bands and tail-bands, in yellow, and, for good measure, a silk marker ribbon in a lighter green. The paper is cream-wove and acid-free, and the book is sewn, not glued.

Throughout the encounter, I should have mentioned, our loony has been chattering away, although what he is trying to say is almost impossible to understand; after a time, however, he becomes sufficiently coherent to make clear that he is trying to sell the books to you. Well, now, such quality in bookmaking today can only be for collectors' limited editions at a fearsome price - £30, £40, £50?

No, no, he says, the glitter more powerful than ever and the trembling of his hands rapidly spreading throughout his entire body; no, no - the books are priced variously at £7, £8 or £9, with the top price £12.

At this, the policemen understandably put their helmets back on; one of them draws his truncheon and the other can be heard summoning reinforcements on his walkie-talkie. The madman bursts into tears, and swears it is all true.

And it is.

David Campbell has acquired the entire rights to the whole of the Everyman's Library, which died a lingering and shameful death a decade or so ago, and he proposes to start it all over again - 48 volumes this September and 80 more next year, in editions I have described, at the prices specified. He proposes to launch his amazing venture simultaneously in Britain and the United States, with the massive firepower of Random Century at his back in this country, and the dashing cavalry of Knopf across the water, and no one who loves literature and courage will forbear to cheer.

At the time this article was written I had believed for some time that columnists in the Times and other journalists had been making references to my situation. Nothing unusual about this you may think, plenty of people have the same sort of ideas and obviously the papers aren't writing about them, so why should my beliefs not be as false as those of others?

What makes this article so extraordinary is that three or four days immediately preceding its publication, I had a meeting with a friend, during the course of which we discussed the media persecution, and in particular that by Times columnists. It seemed to me, reading the article by Levin in Saturday's paper, that he was describing in some detail his "artist's impression" of that meeting. Most telling are the final sentences, when he writes, "The madman bursts into tears, and swears it is all true. And it is." Although I did not "burst into tears" (he seems to be using a bit of poetic licence and exaggerating) I did try hard to convince my friend that it was all true; and I am able to concur with Mr Levin, because, of course, it is.

At the beginning of the piece Levin reveals a fear of being attacked by the "irrational" subject of his story, saying "I have no reason to believe that he is violent, but he should certainly be approached with caution". This goes back to the xenophobic propaganda of "defence" against a "threat" which was seen at the very beginning of the harassment. The impression of a "madman running loose" who needs to be controlled through an agency which assigns to itself the mantle of the "police" is also one which had been expressed elsewhere.

In the final paragraph of this extract, his reference to Everyman's Library as having "died a lingering and shameful death a decade or so ago" shows clearly what sort of conclusion they wish to their campaign. They want a permanent solution, and as they are prevented from achieving that solution directly, they waste significant resources on methods which have been repeatedly shown to be ineffective for such a purpose.

Private Eye, 23 Oct 1992

Certainty level: 25%

I'm not really sure whether this cover was intended to get at me, or whether it was re-interpreted after publication to be about me.
This issue of Private Eye came out in October 1992, by which time I had been under severe continuous pressure at work and from the general population in Oxford for many months. It had John Major saying to his wife, "Come back, Norma!" under the title "Major's support lowest ever".

There's a story behind this. In late October I was in the local pub
(the Rose and Crown, nice traditional name eh) with two people from work, Simon and Phil. Phil had with him a copy of the current Private Eye. These are both "nice people" and on my side, I hasten to add.
Simon pointed out the message on the magazine's cover to Phil, and asked "what do you think about that". Phil answered, "Well usually they [Private Eye] get it right". This exchange happened in front of me.
Although I was ill at the time (this was before I'd started taking medicines) I hadn't read anything into the Eye cover until these guys pointed it out to me.

Sometime later, again in the same road, a student shouted to one of his friends, "so when are you COMING BACK?", again in front of me.

What I realised Phil thought it meant was a double-entendre, the "coming" referring to the act of ejaculation, the "back" referring to the human back-side. So in a play on words you get a person who is referred to as a back-side ejaculating. Charming.

Of course, Phil could have been wrong. Perhaps there was no such meaning intended by Private Eye. Perhaps he saw meaning which wasn't there.
Perhaps the moon is made from green cheese. Who knows?

Victor Lewis-Smith

Certainty level: 10%

Victor Lewis-Smith has issued a denial through his webmaster
John Hayward-Warburton regarding this article; he says quite categorically it's not written about me. I kind-of sort-of believe him, but I think the conspiracy is so wide that the phrase "Eventually, I had to leave because they were all trying to kill me" could have been intended to be as if from any paranoid person, but could have been influenced by my case in the particular. So the influence could have been sort-of subconscious.

This article is from the Evening Standard of Thursday May 8, 1997.
It is titled "Goon, and best forgotten" and may be found on page 31.

I think VLS has written/produced stuff specifically about me in the past, both in his Evening Standard column, one of which is reproduced below (in another case, he was talking about computer hacking, and I think that was directed at me), and a television programme in around late 1993 when he has a taxi driver who says "they're all trying to kill me guv" and VLS responds "you're supposed to be quite intelligent aren't you".

However, his webmaster has issued a formal denial on his behalf, so it is not for me to oppose what he has stated categorically.

3433. MI5 Persecution: Introduction to Sent Faxes (1663)

Introduction to the Sent Faxes webpages

Between 1998 and April/2000 I sent some thirty articles on the subject of the MI5 Persecution to British politicians, media, legal and diplomatic entities in the UK. Of those articles 24 are reproduced on this part of the website. They were originally composed as Microsoft Word documents, and saved to HTML form for publication here. A few of them were slightly edited in format for readability.

You will see that these articles cover quite comprehensively what has been going on since 1990, there being quite a lot of material to cover, since it is a rare week that goes by without MI5 making some harassing or threatening action against me. "How could it be True?"... they use the mental illness which they induced in me as a ready explanation for my complaints. Who started it, why did it start, why it continues...
these faxed articles provide examination in more depth of the treatment in the Frequently Asked Questions webpages.
The sheer meaninglessness of the Secret Police actions is highlighted; their operatives make their livelihoods by cynically exploiting the taxpayers, when in a more responsible country they would be looking at the inside of prison cells.

The validity of this observation is proven by their reaction to my several suggestions in the articles that I would cease sending faxes if MI5's agents (and it's always the same people doing the persecution) desisted from continually harassing me. A number of times, you will see in the faxed articles, I have suggested that we come to a "peace of mind agreement" where I cease complaining and they cease harassing. On one occasion, I wrote to Hugh S.-W., the director of OCTS where I was employed in 1992-94 and who is aware of the circumstances, asking that he intercede to bring this matter to a close, by initiating a meeting between myself and the persecutors to mutually settle our differences; he didn't reply, but MI5 did soon after - they said "This is what you wanted, wasn't it?, some sort of confrontation?". The reality is the people stalking me are not interested in any settlement; for them crime pays, and pays handsomely; moreover it is State-approved crime; the Police will never investigate or take action;

it is corruption on an incredible level and scale, and it has gone on for over a decade.

You will see that the articles contain three elements; firstly, there are original written articles, many in the first half of 1999 when I was writing new articles every week and sending them by email and fax during the weekend; then there are "MI5 Persecution Update" articles, which list happenings recent to a particular transmission; and finally there is the "old faithful" Frequently Asked Questions article which was sent on a few occasions during the three year period. These articles generated a number of interesting responses from politicians and other recipients, many of which are documented in the
"received faxes" area of these webpages.

I hope you enjoy reading these articles. I'm not as angry as these articles necessarily make out, only sometimes, usually soon after the persecutors have said something unpleasant at me; the purpose of putting lots of fire and ire into the mix is to try to chuck it into the public domain which might lead to MI5 being forced to curb their actions. Unfortunately that aim was not achieved, despite many, many thousands of faxes being sent. Also, if any policemen are reading this, then I'm (a bit) sorry about the rude things I said about "the Bill" in one or two of the articles; the police have never done me any harm (yet) by commission, only by omission of doing anything to investigate my complaints or treat them seriously.

3434. MI5 Persecution: Faxes Sent to Diplomatic/Legal (3838)

Faxes Sent to British Diplomatic/Legal logs

During the 1998-2000 period my records indicate that I sent at least 3,642 faxes to diplomatic and legal offices located in the British isles, of which 3,345 went via TPC's email-to-fax service and 297 were sent via fax-modem direct from my computer. The actual figure is somewhat higher since, for most of this period, whenever a recipient asked to be deleted from my mailing list, I totally wiped all entries including that from the logfile.

In the records "Y" indicates successful transmission from fax-modem, "N" indicates failed transmission from fax-modem.
"E" indicates an error occurred while transmitting via fax-modem and a fax may have been only partly transmitted.
"y" and "n" indicate success or failure via TPC.

In April 2000 I changed the method of operation by recording "R" when a recipient requested removal, rather than wiping their details from my mailing list and records; and keeping "B" records for when TPC actioned a ban on a recipient's fax-number, but the recipient did not write to ask me to cease faxing. The purpose of these changes was to keep more accurate and complete records, but the intention was thwarted by the police complaint.

Well Mark, I see that your prediction has not come true that if I stopped posting to RRAP things would return to normal. Its been a while since I posted, and it appears that you have attracted more attention than ever before from folks who will not tolerate your abuse of usenet. I notice that even those who seemed to feel sorry for you have joined in and commented against the Morgan flood. Oh well, just wanted to give you a little reminder that you were wrong once again, the only common denominator the can explain the conditon of usenet is you, and that is a fact.

Faxes Sent to British Media logs

During the 1998-2000 period my records indicate that I sent at least 6,137 faxes to the British media, of which 5,775 went via TPC's email-to-fax service and 362 were sent via fax-modem direct from my computer.
The actual figure is obviously higher since, for most of this period, whenever a recipient asked to be deleted from my mailing list, I totally wiped all entries including that from the logfile.

In the records "Y" indicates successful transmission from fax-modem, "N" indicates failed transmission from fax-modem.
"E" indicates an error occurred while transmitting via fax-modem and a fax may have been only partly transmitted.
"y" and "n" indicate success or failure via TPC.

In April 2000 I changed the method of operation by recording "R" when a recipient requested removal, rather than wiping their details from my mailing list and records; and keeping "B" records for when TPC actioned a ban on a recipient's fax-number, but the recipient did not write to ask me to cease faxing. The purpose of these changes was to keep more accurate and complete records, but the intention was thwarted by the police complaint.
Also in April 2000, I added some further fax numbers to my media mailing list and records, which is why some of the faxnumbers below have only a single entry, and some indeed have none.

5T, MAURITANIA. Andreas, DL7ZZ, informs OPDX that a German team is planning a DXpedition to Nouakchott, Mauritania, between March 16-30th (2008). The current team of operators are: Rich/DK8YY, Rene/DL2JRM, Ralf/DL3JJ, Ingolf/DL4JS, Dan/DL5SE and Andreas/DL7ZZ. All team members are well-known for their DXpeditions and contesting, and they would like to provide 5T as a new one to those who need it. Operating location will be nearby the Atlantic Sea, so there will be enough space for their antenna systems especially for the low bands. The team is expecting their license very soon. They plan to have 3 stations on the air; 2 with amplifiers. For operations on the low bands 2 verticals (V160 and V80) will be errected, and on 40m they will use 2 phased verticals. For 30-10 meters, they will set up 2 beams, and for the digital station there will be another ground-plane. They will try to have an online log available that will be updated daily via I-net or pactor. A Web page will be updated with all informations about the DXpedition at: http://www.5t2008.de QSL via DH7WW, by the bureau or direct. The team is looking for sponsors and donations.

I love making up callsigns of rare countries and/or sections during clowntests. Fooling the clowntesters into thinking they just worked a rare section is like shootin fish in a toilet bowl.
Just turn down the power and the mic gain and make up a fake foreign accent an you have em licking your ass. HAHA!

3766. Why doesn't Mark want to bare the sole responsibility of his actions of lauding false charges against an innocent ham (Brian Crow) K3VR to Florida Child Protective Services...

No matter how Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ tries to rationalize his reasoning for his actions, there is no excuse for the false reporting of lies about another person because he suspects something through his twisted logic and suspects that a certain person is the author of messages on a ham radio message board WITHOUT ANY PROOF WHATSOEVER . If anyone reading this knows Mr. Crow, they should inform him that Mr. Mark C. Morgan KB9RQZ, has alleged on the www.nimbusters.com ham board, that he called the hotline for the Florida Department of Child Protective Services and falsely reported that Mr. Crow has had inappropriate conversations with a 7 year old child concerning sex.

IMO this behavior on the part of Mr. Morgan and his actions are dispicable, but shows the great length that Mr. Morgan will go to persue/attack other hams who he thinks criticize his netique by taking his disputes off of the net and trying to affect someone's freedom and livelyhood by lauding false charges against anyone he deems is deserving of his tirade of revenge.

Speaking on behalf of at least four Hams I know of, thank you, Dloyd, for the ongoing humor you are providing.
Mark is spinning like a gyroscope gone dizzily out of control.

The humor? That Mark becomes upset about your half-dozen posts per diem and accuses you of flooding the group while at the same time posting up to and including hundreds of times in a single day.
Methinks it highly odd that Mark cannot, or refuses, to see the irony in his accusations.

Mark could easily bring all of this to a halt. All it would require would be for Mark to stop flaming and acting like a petulant child. But of course in his infantile mind, he is "defending" himself and is the "victum" in all of this.

Keep up the good work. Many of us are enjoying watching as you manipulate and choreograph Mark's next dance.

It is not hard to start him off, he is always wound up like a spring.
He has screwed the pooch on his latest tirade. In his attempt to take revenge against me, he has falsely accused another ham of child molestation. Me thinks, Marks world is going to really get interesting in the next few weeks.

Mark has heard this before and will claim to be unphased. He apparently thinks that he is invinceable. At least he thought he was until DeLorean came along, that is. :-)
I think he is now seeing the chinks in his armor.
Now days poor Mark is spinning and spinning and looking over his digital shoulder from day to day. He's not sure who is who any more.

What kind of dance are you going to have Mark do next? This is almost like watching Dancing With The Stars, only funnier!

C. Bose whose devotion and dedication to science was solely for the love of science, and who spread his knowledge to entire mankind for the good of the human race without thinking of any personal benefit. He never aspired for money nor fame and thus has not being given due recognition for his scientific endeavors which led to the discovery and advancement of radio communication as we know today. The man was far ahead of his times and even today his work on millimetric waves is being utilised in radio telescopes. 3931. MI5 Persecution: Faxes Sent to Parliament1 (1663)

Faxes Sent to British Parliament logs

During the 1998-2000 period my records indicate that I sent at least 14,480 faxes to the British Parliament in Westminster, of which 9,138 went via TPC's email-to-fax service and 5,342 were sent via fax-modem direct from my computer. The actual figure is obviously much higher since, for most of this period, whenever a recipient asked to be deleted from my mailing list, I totally wiped all entries including that from the logfile.

In the records "Y" indicates successful transmission from fax-modem, "N" indicates failed transmission from fax-modem.
"E" indicates an error occurred while transmitting via fax-modem and a fax may have been only partly transmitted.
"y" and "n" indicate success or failure via TPC.

In April 2000 I changed the method of operation by recording "R" when a recipient requested removal, rather than wiping their details from my mailing list and records; and keeping "B" records for when TPC actioned a ban on a recipient's fax-number, but the recipient did not write to ask me to cease faxing. The purpose of these changes was to keep more accurate and complete records, but the intention was thwarted by the police complaint.

MI5 Persecution: How Could It Be True?

If you have the patience to read these articles you will be struck by how apparently fantastic the claims being put forward are. You may ask yourself why such seemingly nonsensical assertions are made. This matter has been discussed on the Internets UK-local newsgroups for three years now, and the denizens of the uk.misc newsgroup (the so-called "miscreants") have come up with a number of theories to explain these posts; it has been variously suggested that they are a troll (an artificial creation for the amusement of its author), that they are made by MI5 themselves with the purpose of discrediting other conspiracy theories, and that the poster is mentally ill and the articles are symptomatic of the illness (the view held by most miscreants).

Are these claims the product of mental illness, or is that just a cover?

The most obvious explanation, that the claims made result from the admitted mental illness of the author, is the one which the persecutors intend be the one accepted without consideration being given to the possibility of the claims being true. The persecutors have actually been very clever about this, both in selecting as their target someone who was known from school or university as being borderline schizophrenic, and in ensuring the nature of their persecution corresponds to what often features in the delusions of a schizophrenic.

The very first incident of the persecution occurred in June 1990, when I was still a student at university in London. It consisted of a reaction (giggling) from the newsreader, Sue Carpenter of ITN, to what she saw happening in my living-room at my parents home where I was living. Before your imagination gets the better of you I should make clear that what the newsreader was reacting to was not too embarrassing in nature; my mother had brought an apple for me into the the room, and Sue Carpenter found this amusing.

I recognized that Carpenter had reacted to what she had seen in my living-room, yet this idea still seemed completely fantastic to me. My reaction was to continue watching television, particularly the news, to see if this incident would be repeated. It was, many times, both on BBC and ITV. An intelligent person would have thought to obtain a video recorder and capture some of these incidents in order to try to explain to an observer what he saw in these broadcasts. Unfortunately, I failed this test of intelligence, since I did not record these programmes. I have recently attempted to obtain from ITN tapes of their news programmes dating back to summer 1990, but, unhappily, they have advised me that they do not have complete programmes including newsreaders comments dating back to that period.

From the outset, the persecutors structured their actions to ensure that any complaint would be met with disbelief, and dismissed as delusional. This is why they chose as their target someone who was known at school and university to be borderline mentally ill; and it is why they fired the first shots of their campaign through the broadcast media. Schizophrenics commonly believe the media harass them; it would be exceptional for "full-duplex television" to exist in reality. Those with schizophrenia also commonly believe people are talking about them; again, the persecutors have shown themselves very rarely, but act through intermediaries, both in the workplace, and in public and during travel.

Mental illness is not the cause of these claims, but the simulation of its symptoms is a cover used by the persecutors to deny their victim the ability to have his compaints believed.

What evidence exists to support these claims of "interactive television/radio";?

Quite frankly, I have very little evidence to support my claims. You may examine the "Evidence" area of my website to see such evidence as I have been able to gather. None of it is remotely conclusive. The "smoking guns" all date back to 1990/91, and it is really rather late now to start trying to look for material dating back seven or eight years. In 1997 I started tape-recording every programme I watched or listened to. I also started carrying with me a high-fidelity minidisc-recorder with good quality microphone to catch incidents of public harassment, but this also has not been as successful or conclusive as I had hoped.

Perhaps the best item in the "Evidence" section is the audio file "Life is so hard" (it is labelled with Garfield the cartoon character on the site), which I have given a certainty level of 100%. This item relates to harassment at my workplace in Canada in 1996. A co-worker called Mark was coming up with phrases and expressions which were repeating things being said at my Canadian residence, consequently leading me to believe that my apartment and home phone were bugged, and that the persecutors were passing their gathered information on to Mark. On one particular evening I said in my apartment, "life is so hard, and then you die". The following day I was able to record Mark saying exactly the same phrase at work.

Unfortunately when "they" know you are recording them, they simply dont say things which would unambiguously show harassment. When Mark the co-worker knew he was being recorded, he only made his remarks out of range of the recorder, for example outside the building. When the TV newscasters or radio disc jockeys know they are being taped, they limit themselves to saying things which are ambiguous, which even in my mind may or may not be personally directed against me.

Who knows about this persecution?

Surprisingly many people know. People in the media, such as BBC and ITN newscasters including Martyn Lewis and Michael Buerk, and radio disc jockeys such as Chris Tarrant of Capital Radio, know what is going on, and take part in it. Some co-workers at my former workplaces in England and Canada have known about the harassment. Quite a few people in the general public are also included. I believe the police are aware of the persecution, but, unfortunately, have chosen not to take any action to stop it. I have complained at my local police station in London several years ago, and I have stated on the internet newsgroups that I have done so, hence the police will be well aware of my wish to see the matter resolved. I believe their inaction denotes a dereliction of duty, but without good evidence, I am powerless to compel them to take steps to prevent further harassment, or deal with what has already taken place.

What is the purpose of sending these faxes?

These faxes are being sent to three distinct groups of people, namely Members of Parliament, the media, and diplomats & legal people. As you will have observed I am making use of the email-to-fax gateway at Demon Internet to send these faxes. I am forced to use this gateway since I currently live in North America, and cannot afford the high cost of direct phone calls to the UK.

My purpose in publicising my claims is firstly to discourage the persecutors from continuing their campaign, and also to attempt to bring their campaign out into the open, and thus perhaps identify the persecutors. Neither aim has been achieved yet, but I hope that with sufficient stimulation these aims may yet be accomplished.

The problem with the second aim is that those who read this article will fall into two groups, those who dont know anything about the persecution and consequently will disbelieve my claims as delusional, and those who do know about the harassment and may have some idea of who is behind it, but realise that if the harassers are exposed and the truth brought out into the open, then powerful British institutions will substantially lose prestige, and be exposed to ridicule.

It would give me hope to believe that these faxes will create a third group of people, those who find out that I am telling the truth, and who follow their consciences in standing up and seeing justice done. Only time will tell if this hope will be realized.

3935. MI5 Persecution: Why do you think MI5 are responsible? (8188)

Why do you think MI5 are responsible?

The question of who is ultimately responsible for this eight-year harassment is one which is very difficult to answer, as the persecutors have never clearly made their identities known to the persecutee. However, I believe I am correct in attributing the continuing victimisation to elements of the British Security Service MI5, and in this article, I will try to explain the reasons for this belief.

The British internet magazine ".net" featured my website on page 17 of their March 1998 issue (number 42). Their review kindly describes it as an "excellent site" and gives some details of what the net surfer will find there. Should you wish to reply to this article you can do so;

"When did you first suspect MI5 were responsible?"

Over Easter 1995 I went to see a local solicitor in London with a view to talking to the police about the harassment. Soon afterwards I did go to my local police station in Clapham and spoke to an officer there. The solicitor made a comment which suggested to me that the persecution I had been experiencing may have been organised by an intelligence service.

Up to this point, I did not have any clear idea as to who was behind the harassment. Only their agents were visible, in the media, on television news programmes, and on the radio; in the workplace, where things said at my home were repeated verbatim; and in some cases abuse in public and during travel, for example on the trip to Poland in June 1992 which I have already described.

Both from the fact that widely disparate individuals and organisations were employed as agents in the campaign against me, and from the fact that an entity would be required to marshal their resources in the areas of spying on my home and giving gathered information to their agents, it was clear to me that a single entity was responsible for carrying out the campaign. Yet from June 1990 until Easter 1995 I did not have a clear idea of who might be responsible. I guessed that perhaps some private individual or group of persons who saw themselves as my enemies had perhaps paid private detectives to organise the harassment. Alternatively, since the campaign had started in the media, I made a far-fetched supposition that perhaps it was an ad-hoc group of media people who had set themselves up in opposition to me. After Easter 1995 I saw that these guesses were wrong, and I made an I believe much more accurate estimate as to who my enemies really are.

"Why couldn't a private group be behind the persecution?"

There are several reasons why a private individual or group would not be behind this campaign.

Quantity of resources / Money. Here is what one Usenet (internet newsgroup) participant had to say (several years ago) on the topic of how much money it would cost just to keep the surveillance going.

PM: >But why? And why you? Do you realize how much it would cost to keep PM: >one person under continuous surveillance for five years? Think about PM: >all the man/hours. Say they _just_ allocated a two man team and a PM: >supervisor. OK., Supervisor's salary, say, #30,000 a year. Two men, PM: >#20,000 a year each. But they'd need to work in shifts -- so it would PM: >be six men at #20,000 (which with on-costs would work out at more like PM: >#30,000 to the employer.)
PM: >
PM: >So, we're talking #30,000 x 6. #180,000. plus say, #40,000 for the PM: >supervisor. #220,000. Then you've got the hardware involved. And PM: >any transcription that needs doing. You don't think the 'Big Boss'
PM: >would listen to hours and hours of tapes, do you.
PM: >
PM: >So, all in all, you couldn't actually do the job for much less than PM: >a quarter million a year. Over five years. What are you doing that makes PM: >it worth the while of the state to spend over one and a quarter million
PM: >on you?

A private individual or group would not spend over a million pounds to verbally torture a victim without some financial motive or gain. Private industry is driven by the profit motive, and there is no financial profit to be had from carrying out a campaign in this way. If a private enterprise were behind it then they would have taken direct physical action a long time ago.

State enterprises, on the other hand, can afford to be wasteful, since they are funded by the taxpayer. They do not have to show a money profit. The employees or contractors employed by a state organisation such as MI5 are driven by their own personal profit motives, to make the most money out of their employers for the longest period of time. MI5 is funded to the tune of #150M p.a.; even a few hundred thousand a year would to them be affordable if their managers could convince themselves of the necessity of what they were doing.

Quality of resources / Technical resources - electronic and other surveillance. In summer 1994 a reputable and competent private detective agency was employed to conduct a counter-surveillance sweep of my home in London. They charged us over #400 for this, conducted a thorough search for radio transmitting devices, hard-wired "probe" microphones and also tested the telephone line. They found nothing. This was not altogether surprising, since it had been made very clear to me that there were bugs in my home; the "buggers" would not have made this clear unless they had felt their bugs were of sufficient sophistication as to be safe from detection.

But there is another lesson to be gained from the failure of the private detectives to find anything. The agency employed was one of the most reputable in London. They were employed on the principle of "setting a thief to catch a thief", for if the harassment were being carried out by private detectives, as I then believed, then surely another set of private detectives would be able to find the bugs that they had planted. That these "private eyes" were unable to find anything, and that the harassers were confident that they would not be able to find any bugs, points to the harassers being an order of sophistication above a private agency, and leads me again to believe that a state intelligence service is responsible for the surveillance and harassment.

Quality of resources / Technical resources - Interception of Postal service. In summer 1994 when I emigrated to Canada to try to escape the harassment, I wrote letters home to my family and friends in London. Quite soon after my arrival in Canada, the harassers were able to find precisely where I was staying. The only way I can see of "their" being able to find out my new address was by interception of my letters to the UK.

Later in 1994, I conducted an experiment to see if my letters home were indeed being read. In a letter home I wrote of being depressed and talked in vague terms of suicide. I deliberately chose this topic, since I believed it was the outcome my harassers were trying to achieve, and that if they read the letter, they would "echo" its contents. Sure enough, soon afterwards there were two incidents of people shouting "suicide" at me in public places in Canada.

It is inconceivable for a private agency to have the ability to intercept postal mail. The state security service on the other hand is well known to engage in these activities.

Quality of resources / Access to Media. One of the strangest aspects of this case is the access "they" have to the broadcast and print media. I still do not understand what could persuade newscasters such as Martyn Lewis and Michael Buerk, who consider themselves "gentlemen", to behave in an almost voyeuristic way by "peeking" into the living room of one of their viewers. A year ago I wrote to the BBC asking if these newscasters would confirm or deny the accusations made against them. The BBC replied that their newscasters had denied the accusations, but refused to do so in writing.

It is well known that MI5 have the ability to plant stories in certain newspapers, but convincing television newscasters to "watch" a viewer while they read the news would surely be very difficult for them to accomplish, unless they presented themselves to these journalists as being, for example, a group in the media who were seeing to it that I got my "deserved" treatment. MI5 has a history of manipulating the media, so it might not be too difficult for them to accomplish such a trick, whereas a private group would not have this ability.

"Have they ever denied that they are the Security Service?"

No. Never. This is in fact the main reason why I believe "they" are MI5 and not a privately funded group. If my guess had been wrong then I am sure that "they" would have crowed over my mistake, but they have never admitted nor denied that they are employees of MI5.

In early January 1996 I flew on a British Airways jet from London to Montreal; also present on the plane, about three or four rows behind me, were two young men, one of them fat and voluble, the other silent. It was quite clear that these two had been planted on the aircraft to "wind me up". The fat youth described the town in Poland where I had spent Christmas, and made some unpleasant personal slurs against me. Most interestingly, he said the words, "he doesnt know who we are".

Now I find this particular form of words very interesting, because while it is not a clear admission, it is only a half-hearted attempt at denial of my guess that "they" = "MI5". Had my guess been wrong, the fat youth would surely have said so more clearly.

"If MI5 were behind it, why would they wish to mask their involvement?"

I have heard a number of times a belief from people in the media that it is they, the media people, who are behind the abuse. In spring 1994 Chris Tarrant the Capital Radio D.J. said sarcastically on his breakfast show, "You know this bloke? he says were trying to kill him. We should be done for attempted manslaughter". We, we, we. Tarrant thought it was a media conspiracy.

Returning to the question of "interactive watching" by television newscasters, it would again be much easier for them to take part in that sort of activity if they convinced themselves that the surveillance and abuse were organised by "their own", by media people. It must be second nature to MI5 to mask their involvement in the matters they deal with; in this case, they pretend the campaign is organised by a group in the media, and any journalists who suspect otherwise keep their silence.

Conclusion

Over the last three years I have stated with some force my belief that MI5 are responsible for my misfortunes. I have done so on Internet newsgroups, in letters and faxes to people in politics and the media in the UK, and in 1997 I made a formal complaint to MI5 regarding their activities; the Security Service Tribunal replied in June 1997 that "no determination in your favour has been made on your complaint". (I believe the statement by the Security Service Tribunal can be disregarded, as they have never, ever made a ruling in favour of a complainant.) In three years of naming MI5 as my oppressor "they" have never denied the charge. To me, their silence on this point indicates that my guess was accurate. I believe my persecutors stand identified. The question of why they should carry out this campaign is one I will try to answer in a future article.

MI5 Persecution Update: Friday 15 May, 1998

The persecution has been quite severe for the last week. It appears that my enemies are reacting to the steady stream of faxes making their way over the Atlantic to the fax machines of Westminster politicians and the media. Here is whats happened in the last few days;

The week started off with an incident in the cafeteria at a local shopping centre where I habitually drink my morning coffee. My enemies have concentrated since winter 1995/96 on throwing a particularly horrible sexual slander against me. They "put people up" to repeat this slander against me, and this is what happened again here.

On Thursday morning (yesterday), instead of going to the usual cafeteria I went to a nearby convenience store for coffee. The same horrible sexual slander was shouted at me very loudly by a member of staff as I walked into the store. This was the first time I had ever bought morning coffee in that shop. The other staff obviously knew what was going on, one of them said, "they screwed up my life".

The fax gateway I use to send these faxes to the UK has been working hard these last few days to shut down my access by barring the accounts I use to send these faxes.

I have received an anonymous threat from fax number 0171-219-6101 (the machine gave its name as "ETRA-HoC") which said, "Stop sending to this fax no 0171-219-6101 or else" (the consequences of continued transmission were unspecified). I invited the sender to apologise for his threat, but received no response.

This all adds up to quite a severe reaction to my faxes of the last few weeks. I actually find this quite heartening since it shows that my faxes are finding the mark and there may yet be a breakthrough in my efforts to expose the Security Service conpiracy of abuse against me which has now been going on for eight years.

MI5 Persecution: "Why would they be doing this to you, sir?"

This article will concentrate on the difficult question of "Why". The question which forms the title of this piece was asked of me by the police officer I spoke to in Easter 1995, when I went to make my complaint.

There are really two sides to this question. Firstly, why should MI5 be harassing anybody in this fashion? Secondly, if they choose to behave in this way, why should they have selected me in particular, and not somebody else? Alternatively, why did the persecution start, and why is it continuing?

I do not have definite answers to either side of this question, since my persecutors have usually kept themselves hidden and only acted through other parties. To know "why", one would have to know who the persecutors are, and something of their personalities, since their abuse is almost certainly symptomatic of a personality disorder of the abusers. Certain things however can be deduced about the abusers from the nature of their behaviour, and I will talk about this later in the article.

Why did it start?

It is clear that the persecution must have been initiated by someone who knew me personally, either at school, or at university, or socially, and knew that I was borderline mentally ill, since this is what makes me a target for the persecutors. Unfortunately, the originators have never been identified, and there are several possible candidates. Neither has the link from the originators of the persecution, to the persecutors themselves, ever been made clear. So who are the originators?

University Staff

The identity of the originators may lie in the timing of the persecution. It started in June 1990, while I was finishing a course at Imperial College in London, and a year after I graduated from Cambridge, where I received a degree in computer science. At Cambridge I had achieved some notoriety in the computer lab from various nefarious exploits. Roger Needham attacked me by saying that "there were great hopes for it, but it failed terribly". When I started at Imperial I found that my reputation had preceded me; Cambridge computer lab had spoken to I.C. lecturers about me. I.C. lecturer Frank McCabe summed up commenting about "setting up a straw man so you can tear him down". (Despite being "torn down" by the Cambridge computer labs lecturers, I still achieved a good first degree and a Masters degree at Imperial.)

Other students at university

So, the originators may have been university staff who knew me from my student days. But there are other possibilities. I had other enemies at university, including some fellow students. At my Cambridge college it was common knowledge that my mental health was dubious, and it was known that I talked to myself in my sleep - the floor and walls were quite permeable to noise, so other students heard. I was given the nickname "gibber" because of this habit. Sometime later, I managed to catch myself talking in my sleep when I woke up in the middle of the night.

Here is a quote from a participant in the internet newsgroup where I have been posting for the last three years;

>One thing which has been missing from this discussion is this simple >prognosis: that maybe he is right and that, despite his admitted >mental condition, there really is a campaign against him organised by >now-influential ex-students of his university.

People I knew socially

I had yet other enemies in 1990 (I am a man of many enemies!). In January 1990 I broke up with some people I had been going out with socially. One of them, by the name of Andy Turner, wrote a letter to Alan Freeman, who at the time was a Radio 1 DJ. Freeman read part of the letter out on his Rock Show, about the "one who wore out his welcome with random precision", saying "thats a hell of a letter you wrote there Andy", and "with a schizophrenic youre never alone".

It is my belief that Andy Turner and his friends were trying to make trouble for me, and Turner wrote to Freeman with this in mind. Freeman may have discussed the letter with others, and things may have snowballed from there. This is, of course, pure supposition. The fact is that I do not know who the originators are, and can only guess.

Once it started, why is it continuing?

The answer to this question is obvious. It is unacceptable to the "powers that be" in the UK to have somebody running around who knows he has been targeted by the Security Service and media organizations, and who is in a position to embarrass British institutions. This has become particularly evident in the last week; as I send more faxes to UK politicians and media, so the pressure on me grows, and the volume of abuse increases.

Part of the reason the persecution continues is in the personalities of the abusers, and it is this subject to which I will turn to next, since the key to understanding the persecution lies in understanding those who carry it out, as much as we can.

The Security Service operatives, the persecutors, are they psychopaths?

Let us first examine the definition of the term "psychopath". DSM-IV defines "anti-social personality disorder" as a "pattern of disregard for and violation of the rights of others ... deceitfulness, irritability and aggressiveness ... consistent irresponsibility and lack of remorse". The Harvard Mental Health Letter of Sept 1995 describes these people as using "charm, manipulation, intimidation and violence to control others and satisfy their own needs. Lacking in conscience and in feelings for others, they cold-bloodedly take what they want and do as they please", having "no guilt or regret".

I must say, reading this description of the condition, that it fits the persecutors perfectly. The persecutors have never shown the slightest remorse or guilt. Even when I was severely ill, they continued to abuse me. They have repeatedly blamed their actions on me, which is another trait common amongst psychopaths. They have no respect for my legal or personal rights, and they use intimidation and verbal violence.

If the MI5 operatives are psychopaths then it would explain both why the persecution started, and the degree of verbal violence. Psychopaths by definition damage other people; here, the MI5 operatives find an outlet for their personality disorder, through "cripple-kicking".

Xenophobia on the basis of mental illness, and race

My enemies have made clear many times that one of the reasons they are persecuting me is because of my admitted mental illness. However, it is my belief that they are also persecuting me because I am not of ethnic English origin, and the fact that there have been several incidents of an overtly racist nature reinforces this view.

In one case, two youths on a tube train in London made openly racist references to me as a "soft toy, not up to British Standards". Another person near my home made remarks about "Polish people". In yet another incident in Croydon, a youth made comments about "foreigners".

But the main thrust of their xenophobia is because of my mental illness. I should make clear that I do not look ill; if you met me, you would not know that I had the illness. I take a relatively low dose of medication, and feel quite well. But the persecutors have repeatedly harped on about my supposed serious mental illness; they have called me a "nutter", a "schizophrenic", etc. They have also persuaded other people to use these terms of abuse. They are able to get away with this because abusing the mentally ill is still something which is mostly acceptable in Britain; the media do it, "nutter" is not taboo in the way that "nigger" is.

Conclusion

There are several groups of people who might have wished to cause me trouble, and I still do not know who originated the persecution. Nor do I know how the originators came to be in contact with the (presumed) Security Service operatives who have been carrying out the campaign. To know conclusively why it started, we would have to know who started it, and this information is not available.

However, we can infer some things about the personalities of the persecutors from their methods, and from the degree of verbal violence they employ. It is clear that a main reason for the continuing harassment is the psychopathic disorder of the MI5 agents who carry it out. That they have never been "brought to book" for their misdeeds reinforces their belief that they do no wrong; and, unhappily, until they are brought to book, their persecution campaign looks set to continue.

Mark get help for your obsession with me, why allege that you are being harrassed, then flood the group with questions for me. What do you want Mark. You can't ask me questions, then when I respond to your buffonery, allege that I am harrassing you. Why do you keep stalking me, find someone else to dream about, your are mentally ill, seek help.
